

Jury silent but decided on one in slaying case

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Marcus Foster murder trial jury said today it has reached a verdict on one member of the Symbionese Liberation Army, but is still deliberating the fate of the second.

The jury foreman, William Sprague, did not tell the court what the verdict was or whether it affected defendant Russell Little or Joseph Remiro.

Sprague told Superior Court Judge Elvin Sheehy that the jury faced a possible impasse on the fate of the second defendant.

"The most recent ballot reflects a numerical count of 39," he said.

"The jurors feel there may be a potential impasse."

Then Sheehy read the jurors a last-ditch instruction advising them to listen to the opinions of their fellow jurors.

"In many cases, absolute certainty cannot be attained or expected," Sheehy said.

After the instruction was read, Sprague asked for a copy of it and said: "The jury does believe more deliberations will determine very shortly whether further deliberations will be useful."

Joseph Remiro, 28, and Russell Little, 25, are charged with murder in Foster's death and with attempted murder in the wounding of his top aide, Robert Blackburn, in the same ambush attack Nov. 6, 1973.

No testimony in the two-month trial placed either defendant at the death scene, the Oakland school district parking lot.

But the prosecution contends they took part in an SLA plot to kill Foster and Blackburn. Under California law, that would make them guilty of murder punishable by life in prison.

An SLA communique the day after Foster's death, claiming responsibility for the killing, was the first public word of the terrorist group.

Three months later it kidnaped newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst, who later announced she had joined the group.

The SLA said Foster was killed because of a proposed student identification program at the Oakland schools.

It was not disclosed which defendant the 6-6 vote involved. Jury foreman William Sprague said there was a different vote on another charge, but he did not say what it was or which way it leaned.

Superior Court Judge Elvin Sheehy said he would allow deliberations to continue.

NIGHTMARISH WRECKAGE

A rescue worker strides past the wreckage of locomotives and passenger cars in south West Germany. Many were killed and scores injured when two trains collided head on on the Alpine hills south of Munich. The trains were full of passengers returning from weekend outings.

36 die, 86 injured as trains collide head on in Germany

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — A police spokesman today reported 36 persons killed and 86 injured in the head-on collision of two passenger trains in the Alpine foothills south of Munich.

It was West Germany's worst train wreck in four years.

Earlier today the police said the toll had risen to 42 dead. But later a spokesman said this incorrect report was due to confusion over the number of persons who had died in hospitals.

So far, no Americans were among the identified victims.

"The cars piled up on each other, and the locomotives were telescoped," a police spokesman said. "It's a terrible scene that recalls the wreckage after World War II bombings."

The two commuter trains were filled with passengers returning from weekend outings. They slammed into each other about 6:45 p.m. Sunday on a single-track stretch of the Munich-Bad Toelz line 30 miles from Munich between the villages of Wangau and Schafflach.

A detachment of U.S. Army Special Forces troops, the Green Berets, is stationed at Bad Toelz.

No immediate information on the identities of the dead and wounded was available.

Kenya bus, truck collide; 28 die

VOI, Kenya (AP) — A bus and a gasoline tank truck collided near this eastern Kenya trading center, killing 28 persons and injuring 25, police said today.

They said bodies were charred beyond recognition as the vehicles continued to burn more than 12 hours after the accident.

The collision occurred several hundred yards south of the Wangau station. A police spokesman said the southbound train failed to stop on a siding at Wangau to let the northbound train go by. The northbound train from the mountains was a special that runs on Sundays and holidays while the southbound train runs every day.

A new timetable that went into effect about a week ago listed both trains to pass the same single-track section during the same six-minute period. One railway official said the point at which the two trains were to pass each other was set for each run by switching personnel, and a spokesman said both trains Sunday were in radio contact with the Wangau and Schafflach stations.

Federal Transport Minister Kurt Gscheidle went to Wangau early today to take charge of the investigation.

changes that may occur in the Egyptian position."

Some members of the cabinet urged that Israel abandon Kissinger's step-by-step approach to peace and offer a detailed plan for a final peace agreement with all her Arab adversaries. The cabinet rejected this, saying a series of partial settlements "is the only realistic way to advance to peace." But it said the government is willing to negotiate peace treaties with all its Arab neighbors and will attend a Middle East peace conference in Geneva if it is called into session.

Pomonan, 21, dies after auto crash

A 21-year-old Pomona man died Sunday morning at Riverside Community Hospital from injuries received in a one-car accident at Riverside.

According to California Highway Patrol officers, the victim, Richard Breiner of 1797 Russell Place, was driving on Route 60 about 1:20 a.m. when his car slammed into a pole.

A passenger, Joe Rudolph Stooksbury of 10111 Galena Ave., Montclair, was treated for a broken arm.

Mr. Breiner was born Dec. 16, 1953 at Torrance. He came to Pomona in 1955. He attended the Riverside School for the Deaf until he was 16.

Mr. Breiner was employed at General Electric's Ontario Aviation Service Shop.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Breiner, two sisters, Mrs. Kathleen Egelhoff and Mrs. Dorene Mittler, and two brothers, Kenneth J. and Michael, all of Pomona; and his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Nettie Owen of David-sonville, Md.

Services will be held at Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona Wednesday at 3 p.m. Burial will be at Holy Cross Cemetery, Pomona.

Friends may contribute to the Pomona Valley Hearing Society, 1139 Garey Ave., Pomona, or the Crippled Children's Society, 480 S. Indian Hill Blvd., Claremont 91711.

Assassination issue to be left up to Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will make public the Rockefeller Commission report on the Central Intelligence Agency but keep secret the commission's information about alleged assassination plots, White House sources said today.

However, the sources said Ford eventually will make the assassination information available to the Senate intelligence committee. The panel is focusing its investigation of the CIA on what its chairman calls hard evidence of "murder plots."

Sources said the President will announce his decision to release the commission report during a nationally broadcast news conference at 4:30 p.m. PDT. There was no word on when the report, dealing with allegations of domestic spying by the CIA, would be made public.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said during the weekend he assumed the President would make the commission report public.

The Senate committee, chaired by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, was meeting later today to question Robert Maheu, a former aide to billionaire Howard Hughes, and Richard Bissell, former head of the CIA's clandestine operations or "dirty tricks" department.

Meanwhile, there were these developments:

—Rep. Lucien Nedzi, D-Mich., said he will not resign as chairman of the special House committee investigating the CIA and other intelligence-gathering agencies. Nedzi acknowledged the CIA had given him information about "some sort of assassination" because he also is chairman of the standing committee that is responsible for overseeing the agency's activities.

The other five Democrats on the special committee have asked Nedzi to resign as chairman of that panel on the grounds that he had done nothing after learning about the assassination plots.

High court won't act on state wages

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today refused to review wage increases granted to California state employees in 1973 which were in excess of the federal wage controls in effect at the time.

The court left undisturbed a decision of the U.S. Treasury Emergency Court of Appeals striking down an injunction by U.S. District Judge Thomas J. MacBride of Sacramento, Calif., against the pay raises.

The dispute arose over action by the 1973 California Legislature increasing wages for approximately 180,000 state employees by amounts ranging from 6.8 to 11.3 per cent.

The Cost of Living Council reviewed the increases and ordered them reduced to a maximum of 7 per cent. The general wage and salary standard in effect at the time provided for increases of not more than 5.5 per cent.

After the California State Employees Association filed suit, the California Supreme Court ruled that the Economic Stabilization Act did not apply to state employees. The act expired April 30, 1974.

The government obtained a preliminary injunction from McBride to prevent the state from paying the increase. But the Temporary Emergency Court of Appeals ruled that the judge had no jurisdiction to issue it.

The government said this ruling, if allowed to stand, would "significantly undercut the achievements of the Economic Stabilization Act and add substantially to current inflationary pressures."

In other action, the court:

—Refused to consider the appeals of four Cubans who participated in the 1972 Watergate burglary. The four pleaded guilty to conspiracy, burglary and wiretapping but later tried to change their pleas to innocent.

—Ruled that a state cannot deny welfare benefits to jobless fathers who rejected unemployment compensation. The unanimous decision gave unemployed fathers the right to choose to receive funds from the program offering the most benefits.

Israel firm: next move Egypt's

JERUSALEM (AP) — Resisting pressure from Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, the Israeli cabinet says it won't modify its terms for another troop withdrawal in the Sinai Desert unless Egypt comes up with a new offer.

The cabinet decision Sunday night was a victory for Premier Yitzhak Rabin, who has been pressed by Kissinger to bring new proposals to Washington for his meeting with President Ford this week.

Kissinger and Ford blame Israel for the collapse of Kissinger's attempt to negotiate a withdrawal agreement last March because Israel insisted on a pledge of nonbelligerency from Egypt. After Ford's meeting with President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, the secretary of state said he could not determine whether he would try to revive the Israeli-Egyptian negotiations until after Ford met with Rabin.

A communique issued after the Israeli cabinet meeting said Israel's terms "remain in force" but "the government will be willing to re-examine its policy concomitant with

SLA JURY UNDECIDED

Symbionese Liberation Army "soldiers" Joseph Ramiro, top left, and Russell Little were taken to the Sacramento County courthouse Sunday where they are on trial for the cyanide-bullet assassination of Oakland school chief Marcus

Foster. The divided jury is now in its 11th day of deliberation. Presiding Superior Court Judge Elvin Sheehy reported the jury was split 6-6 and 10-2 on charges but would not say if the majority favored guilt or innocence.

State legislature

Budget, malpractice insurance on agenda

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The $11-billion-plus state budget and legislation to bring down the cost of medical malpractice insurance are major unresolved issues as the legislature starts another week.

In the Assembly, where the Republicans chose to stand as a bloc, the Democrats are one vote short of the two thirds needed for passage of an $11.6 billion budget.

The Senate handily passed its version of the budget, which is $86 million higher.

When the Assembly finally passes its version, a two-house conference committee will resolve the differences.

The administration of Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. was expected to take a stand this week on some of the many malpractice insurance bills which are pending in the special session Brown called to deal with that crisis.

The malpractice issue shapes up as a three-way fight among doctors, lawyers and insurance companies. Brown has said that all are going to have to give a little.

The missing Democratic vote for the budget in the Assembly is Assemblyman Curtis Tucker, who is recovering from heart surgery in an Inglewood hospital.

While no Assembly Republican voted for the budget, one — Frank Lanterman of La Canada — didn't vote at all.

Speaker Leo McCarthy, the Democratic leader, says he has two choices — persuade a Republican to switch, or wait until Tucker can return.

Another issue of importance to Brown, his proposal for a single state environmental agency, has a hearing Tuesday before a joint meeting of the Assembly Resources and Land Use and Governmental Organization committees.

Measures to put the government in the oil exploration and election financing businesses also await legislative committees this week. Six malpractice bills will be before the Assembly Finance, Insurance and Commerce Committee Monday and two more Wednesday. On Tuesday, the Assembly Judiciary Committee has 15 malpractice bills scheduled.

The bills run the gamut of ideas about doctors' insurance, from limits on attorneys' fees and jury awards to requirements that doctors volunteer information about instances of malpractice they see.

Donald Burns, secretary of business and transportation and the administration's chief spokesman on malpractice, told an Assembly committee last week he expected to be able to take a stand on some bills by Tuesday.

The public oil corporation bill, by Assemblyman Charles Warren, D-Los Angeles, is opposed by the oil industry. It is scheduled for hearing in the Assembly Ways and Means Committee Friday.

The bill would set up a small-scale, state-owned nonprofit corporation to drill for oil.

On Tuesday, the Ways and Means committee will hear rival bills on public campaign financing by Assemblymen Jim Keyser, D-Sepulveda, and Terry Goggin, D-San Bernardino.

The bills of campaign reform in the proportion of difficult costs that the state is supposed to pay. Keyser's bill has the support of Common Cause.

Other major legislative topics this week include:

—ALCOHOL: Bills by Sen. Arlen Gregorio, D-San Mateo, to increase the liquor tax and use the money to finance alcoholism treatment programs are scheduled for hearing in the Senate Finance Committee Monday.

—HEARING AIDS: The same committee will hear a bill by Sen. Peter Behr, R-Tiburon, requiring examination by a hearing specialist before a hearing aid is sold.

—TAXES: A sweeping tax reform bill by Sen. John Dunlap, D-Napa, is scheduled before the Senate Revenue and Taxation Committee Wednesday. Dunlap says it would close business tax loopholes, give tax breaks to lower-income persons, and increase state revenues.

—CAPITOL: A $43-million bill for reconstruction of the century-old west wing of the state Capitol, by Assemblyman Leon Ralph, D-South Gate, goes before the Senate Governmental Organization Committee Tuesday.

RICHARDSON, R-19th Dist., said his proposed legislation that would apply the death penalty for terrorist bombings in which someone is killed has passed the final hurdle before going to the full Senate for passage.

The measure has now cleared both the Senate Finance and Judiciary committees. It provides that any bombing in or near a building would bring life imprisonment without possibility of parole. But when a fatality occurred, the punishment would be death.

Richardson has termed terrorist bombings as "the most violent and most cowardly type of crime."

STATE SEN. H. L.

On solving problems

Look to yourselves Brown tells students

SANTA CLARA (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. says young Americans should look to themselves, not government, to solve problems.

The 37-year-old governor emphasized individual effort Sunday in his commencement address at the University of Santa Clara. It was his first formal speech since his inauguration.

Later in the day, Brown flew to Lassen County, where he attended an Indian Bear Dance festival and toured a state prison.

"Too many people are looking to government to solve their problems. They're looking for what they themselves perhaps think they lack," Brown told the commencement audience of 10,000, including 1,270 new Santa Clara graduates and Brown's father, the former governor.

"But in reality, you have all you need. You have all you are ever going to get, so you have to depend on yourself. You have to depend on your own energy and your own creative potential.... I don't think government is going to provide it. I don't think anyone else is going to provide it."

Brown attended the Jesuit institution for two semesters 20 years ago — during his college freshman year, when he was studying for the priesthood at the nearby Jesuit Novitiate of Los Gatos.

"Change is nothing new, but the velocity of change is increasing," Brown said. "The mobility of people, the consequences of technology, the flow of information — all these things are changing our institutions," he said.

"The more things change, the more they return to where they once were. Look back to the history of the Jesuits. They were born in a time when the power of the Near East was asserting itself, when the assumptions of European civilization were being questioned, when the Far East was yet a mysterious land.

"Not much has changed. The Far East is there to be explored, the Near East is asserting its power and the assumptions on which European civilizations have rested are being very much brought into question."

Brown joked about his hesitancy to give formal speeches — his inaugural lasted seven minutes, and his commencement address eight minutes.

"I have a hesitancy in giving public speeches. The reason for that is, if there's any vice that I see more than any other in public affairs, it's the surplus of rhetoric, the meaningless generalizations and the abuse of the English language."

The Lassen County tour — by National Guard plane, helicopter and jeep — was unannounced.

About 1,200 Maidu and other Indians attended the annual bear dance at Notukkaya, about 10 miles southwest of Susanville near the Nevada border. Brown said he didn't announce his plans because any publicity of his plans to attend might spoil the event.

13 black athletes run out of Taft by whites

TAFT (AP) — The 13 black residents of this small community in the desolate, parched oil fields of the San Joaquin Valley were virtually run out of town by whites two weeks ago and haven't been back since.

A local newspaper editor decries the incident as reminiscent of the days in the early 1900s when all black people were required to leave Taft by sundown. But at least one member of the small group of mostly unemployed whites who chased the blacks away predicts violence if they try to return.

"What happened here is a sickening reminder of our earlier days when a local faction of the Ku Klux Klan tried to force this city to accept its version of 'justice,'" editor Dennis McCall wrote in a Daily Midway Driller editorial.

The 13 blacks were all football players at Taft Junior College.

They were recruited because they were recruited from outside the area and replaced local athletes on the team, said Rick Riddick, 22, a local oil worker. He said they also received an unfair number of campus jobs and study grants.

"If they the black athletes come back... somebody is going to get killed," says Doug Henry, 22.

Henry was wounded in the neck by a shotgun blast May 25 when, according to witnesses, he and several carloads of young white men chased three black athletes through down, surrounded them and started to fight.

One of the blacks, Joe W. Rhone,

21, a linebacker recruited from Fort Wayne, Ind., used a shotgun as a club to ward off his attackers. The gun fired accidentally and shot Henry.

Rhone was arrested but charges were dropped later, the district attorney's office saying he had acted in self defense.

A few hours after the shooting incident, about 40 youths invaded the junior college campus, threatening to kill all blacks. Two of the athletes ran from the campus and police placed the others in jail for "protective custody." They were later escorted to Bakersfield, 40 miles away, and have not returned.

Two days later, McCall was beaten up by Riddick. Witnesses said Riddick called McCall a "nigger lover" for printing a front-page story about the shooting. Last Monday Riddick pleaded guilty to the assault and was fined $250.

Rhone and Riddick have been the only persons arrested. Police Chief Walter McKee says the incident has been blown out of proportion.

College trustees have called for an investigation into the violence, and the City Council has asked the Kern County Grand Jury to investigate. A U.S. attorney also reported the trouble to the Justice Department's civil rights division in Washington, D.C.

Tom Harrell, athletic director and football coach, says the college couldn't field a team unless it recruited students elsewhere. This, he contended, would deny athletic competition to local students.

Two-district teacher strike could intensify

HUNTINGTON BEACH (AP) — A teacher strike in Huntington Beach and Fountain Valley may intensify, school officials say.

About 650 teachers struck Friday in a surprise walkout at the two school districts in a dispute over wages and other issues.

Officials in the Huntington Beach Union High School district called Saturday for volunteers to supervise classes in place of the teachers.

Teacher organizations in the two districts called the strike early Friday at a general membership meeting, although they had earlier voted not to strike.

Huntington Beach teachers asked for a 13.5 per cent salary increase, but the school board offered a 7 per cent increase with no conditions or an 8.5 per cent conditional increase. The conditions included implementation of a teacher evaluation program and restrictions on future negotiations.

Fountain Valley teachers asked for a 10 per cent raise, but the board offered only a one-time bonus equivalent to a 3.8 per cent increase for the average teacher. The bonus would be paid only if pending state funds are paid to the district.

Officials said the strike in Huntington Beach was expected to last at least through Tuesday, when the board will hold a night meeting. No sessions of the Fountain Valley board were scheduled.

It was estimated that between 55 and 70 per cent of the Huntington Beach teachers and about 40 per cent of the Fountain Valley teachers were off the job Friday.

The schools remained open during the walkout and attendance was not seriously affected. Officials called in volunteers to supervise classrooms and man telephones.

Mudd grads told

Search for energy may sow discord

The international search for energy could sow as much discord among nations as all past and present ideological struggles, E. M. "Mo" Benson Jr., Atlantic Richfield Co. executive, told the graduating class of Harvey Mudd College Sunday in Claremont.

However, Benson affirmed his belief that the country could solve the energy dilemma.

Benson pointed out that the United States in recent times has suffered a series of shocks from which it has not recovered. "But the solution to the single most pervasive issue, the energy dilemma, is within our grasp if we can resolve a simply stated but very complex paradox — energy riches beneath the ground, energy poverty above the ground," he said.

Noting the United States imports six million barrels of oil per day, with the rate climbing, Benson stated the increased energy supplies must come from expanded production of domestic oil, gas and coal in the immediate future.

To accomplish this, compromises between environmental objectives and energy requirements are absolutely necessary if the country is to achieve its announced goal, energy independence, he added.

While stressing the need for conservation Benson reminded the audience it would be tragic to fail in efforts to maintain world energy peace by failing to develop the nation's God given wealth of natural resources.

"Over the long term," he told the 81 graduates of the private engineering and science college, during their commencement exercises on the campus' liberty plaza, "you are ideally equipped to turn your attention to harnessing the energy of the sun, the restless oceans, and the power of the atom."

Traffic court bill advances

Legislation by Assemblyman Bill McVittie, D-65th Dist., to eliminate the necessity of multiple court appearances for motorists who plead innocent on minor traffic cases has passed the Assembly's Criminal Justice Committee.

The measure allows a motorist to appear before the court clerk, post bail and announce his intention to plead innocent. The clerk then schedules the arraignment proceeding and trial for the same date. Currently, a motorist appears in court to plead innocent and then must come back later for his trial.

"For minor traffic offenses where the fine may be $25, taking off an extra day from work to plead not guilty is often more expensive than paying the fine," said McVittie.

"My bill eliminates the requirement of two court appearances and saves time for both motorists and our courts."

The measure is part of McVittie's traffic court reform program designed to simplify and speed up traffic court cases. Most courts have a serious backlog of traffic cases.

The matter will go to the full Assembly before it is passed over to the Senate.

STATE SEN. H. L.

Seeks abolition of all property taxes

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — The chairman of the nation's governors wants to see all property taxes abolished and replaced with something more compatible with today's inflation economy.

Democratic Gov. Calvin L. Rampton of Utah says he hopes to see the time "when the property tax would be phased out entirely for all forms of government, and I mean entirely, gone."

In the prepared text of today's keynote speech at the 67th National Governor's Conference, Rampton called for "restructuring our tax sources at all levels of government so that each level on its own will have adequate sources of revenue."

At a news conference Sunday, Rampton said the federal government has virtually preempted the only viable alternative, the income tax, while local government is locked into a rigid property tax structure or handouts from the state and federal levels.

"The states and the federal government have the sources of revenue that react to economic conditions," Rampton said at the conference. "The federal income tax goes up faster than inflation. The sales tax goes up just as fast. The property tax stays just where it is."

"So I would expect to see over the years a phasing down of the property tax for local government, school districts and others and a greater reliance of all units of government on taxes that are more responsive to changes in economic conditions."

Rampton said state legislatures should relax restrictions on local income and sales taxes and predicted taxpayers would support the change "if they could get a trade off with the property tax."

Rampton conceded that the kind of tax restructuring needed would be difficult and take some time.

"I would not expect to see the whole thing I have in mind accomplished in less than two decades," he said. "But I would like to see the time come . . . when the property tax would be phased out entirely for all forms of government, and I mean entirely, gone."

In his speech he said: "The problems of revising our tax structure, difficult as they may be, are not nearly as great as the problems which are going to continue to face all units of local government in attempting to supply services in an inflationary period from their present tax sources."

Rampton used a Conference staff study to support his assertion that states have failed to support local government adequately.

"The past several years have seen a tendency arise for local governments, both city and county, to circumvent state government and take their problems directly to Washington," Rampton said.

"In all candor, I must say that a large share of the blame for this disenchantment on the part of local officials with state government lies with the states themselves. We as states have failed fully to meet our responsibility to the units of local government, and they have turned to the federal government in desperation."

"Too much reliance on the property tax is still the bane of state and local fiscal authorities," the report said. "Local governments are often forced to burden property owners and renters inequitably because of state restrictions on the use of other revenue producers."

"Twenty-four states do not permit their localities to levy a sales tax and 40 prohibit a local income tax," the report said.

Antiwar activist Susan Saxe

Radical switches plea to guilty

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Antiwar radical Susan Saxe withdrew her innocent plea today and agreed to plead guilty to bank robbery charges in a special deal with federal prosecutors.

Miss Saxe, a self-proclaimed feminist and lesbian, agreed to plead guilty to stealing $6,240 from the Bell Savings and Loan Association in Philadelphia in September 1970, and also to participating in a robbery at the Newburyport, Mass., federal arsenal in August of that year.

The 26-year-old Brandeis University honors graduate from Albany, N.Y., stood before District Judge Alfred L. Luongo and said she agreed to change her plea after consulting with her lawyers.

"Do you understand what you are doing?" Luongo asked.

"Yes, I understand," she said.

"Did you sign that agreement?" Luongo asked.

"I signed it (and) I didn't make any other deal," she said.

Under the agreement, the government and defense attorneys said they would recommend to the judge that Miss Saxe receive a sentence of no more than 10 years in prison.

She could receive as much as 40 years in jail and a $30,000 fine.

In the agreement, the government said it would not prosecute Miss Saxe for 1970 bank robberies in Evanston, Ill., and Beverly Hills, Calif., and would dismiss a federal warrant charging interstate flight.

Miss Saxe, before her arrest March 27 on a Philadelphia street, was on the FBI's "10 most wanted" list for more than four years.

N.Y. City tries to banish fiscal woes

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Abraham D. Beame said today the city and Gov. Hugh Carey's advisory board have agreed on formation of a proposed corporation to bail the city out of its fiscal crisis.

"We've developed a formula which is acceptable to the city," Beame told newsmen following a meeting with the City Council, the city's Board of Estimate and Carey's board.

He said the proposal to help the nation's largest city convert $3 billion in short-term debt into long-term bonds was now up to the Republican majority in the State Senate for approval.

Beame said that, under the proposal to set up a state-backed Municipal Assistance Corporation, labeled "Big Mac" by Carey, the corporation "would not have any veto power or the power to change anything we have in our budget."

The banking community had been seeking restraints on the city's spending, for fear its money problems would recur.

"That was the easiest way; I didn't have enough nerve to try the wall," Remling said. "I'm getting a little old for that."

He said he didn't think he'd try it again.

"Remling spent a couple of years getting this ready," FBI agent Neil Welch said Sunday. "And his total plan apparently ended with his getting over the wall . . . The whole thing just fritzed."

Remling said the escape plan, which bought him just 30 hours of freedom, was hatched months before the movie "Breakout" was released. The movie depicts a similar attempt.

But Remling told arresting officers his prison bust did stem from news accounts of a whirlybird escape by Joel Kaplan, a millionaire who gained freedom from a Mexican prison and is reportedly now living in the southwest United States.

"Breakout," starring Charles Bronson as a helicopter pilot, was based on that raid.

Remling said he never saw the movie, and it was never shown in the prison, officials said.

Despite its initial success, Remling's scheme unraveled quickly. He was picked up alone and unarmed Saturday in a Leslie bar, 13 miles from the prison in Jackson.

Jolyn Lou Conn, 32; Calvin Woodbury, 19; and JoAnn Van Patten and Susan Hill, both 20, were charged with aiding and abetting the escape and with federal skyjacking conspiracy.

Police are seeking Morris Colosky, whom they say skyjacked the helicopter at knifepoint on Friday, and Gertrude Woodbury, suspected of being the go-between for Remling and his accomplices.

The women reportedly drove decoy getaway cars from the point where the helicopter dropped Remling and the skyjacker, six miles from the prison. Calvin Woodbury is the son of Gertrude Woodbury.

Remling was serving a 6-to-10-year term for check fraud and a concurrent seven-year term for stealing several hundred hogs in Nebraska.

Red A-sub cruise closer to U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Soviet missile-firing submarine has been detected operating closer to the U.S. East Coast than ever before.

Pentagon officials are puzzled why the Russian command sent a Y-class nuclear-powered submarine to cruise within 350 miles of Cape Cod, Mass., and later about the same distance off Norfolk, Va., last week.

This is about 1,000 miles closer to the United States than Soviet Y-class subs normally patrol in the Atlantic.

Although there is no sign of any hostile intent, the recent track of the Soviet submarine would bring much more of this country within the 1,300-mile to 1,600-mile range of missiles carried in Y-class boats.

Intelligence analysts speculate that the appearance of the submarine in the new area could foreshadow a change in the patrol pattern of Soviet missile craft.

Or, they say the Russians could be trying to draw a reaction from the U.S. Navy to learn more about the effectiveness of U.S. methods and equipment in detecting the presence of submarines operating below the surface of the sea.

Both the United States and the Soviet Union are constantly at work attempting to improve techniques for concealing the locations of their missile-firing submarines.

Some years ago, the U.S. Navy learned that the Russians sometimes positioned attack submarines off ports like Charleston, S.C., Guam, and Holy Loch, Scotland. When U.S. Polaris missile submarines left those ports on 60-day submerged patrols, the Russian subs tried to follow.

On at least one such occasion, a Polaris sub and a Russian attack sub are reported to have bumped off Holy Loch. Neither sub was badly damaged and sources said they went their separate ways afterwards.

The U.S. Navy has developed a number of plays aimed at foiling Soviet efforts to keep track of the Polaris subs. Details of these plays are kept secret.

Russian Y-class submarines are similar to U.S. Polaris boats. Both are armed with 16 missiles each and both are intended to destroy cities in event of nuclear war.

Secret honeymoon for Russ actress

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — Victoria Fyodorova, the love child of an American admiral and a Russian actress' World War II romance, married Frederick Pouy, an American pilot, in a private ceremony here Saturday.

Justice of the Peace Loren H. Jaffe said today he performed the civil ceremony for the couple at a private home here.

"The wedding was a very simple one, a very pleasant one. There was a small group of people there . . . he's a very handsome young man and she's a lovely girl," Jaffe said.

He said the ceremony took place at 1 p.m. He did not identify the owner of the home and declined to say who attended.

Jaffe said he believed the couple left the country after the ceremony.

Navy Capt. Hugh Tate, Miss Fyodorova's half brother, said from his Orange Park, Fla., home, "To be truthful, I don't know the exact location (of the honeymoon). Neither does my father. We did not ask, so that if we were questioned about it, we could truthfully say we did not know."

He said she told him she would return to Orange Park in a couple of weeks to pick up Sailor, black poodle which he is caring for.

Miss Fyodorova, 29, came to the U.S. in March to see her ailing father, Navy Adm. Jackson R. Tate, 77, of Florida, for the first time. Her visa expires June 22 but Pouy, 37, can ask that she be granted permanent residence in the United States.

Miss Fyodorova was conceived during a love affair between the elder Tate, then a member of a U.S. military mission in Moscow, and Zoya Fyodorova, a Russian actress.

When Soviet leader Josef Stalin learned of the affair, Tate was sent home and Zoya was imprisoned for eight years.

Tate first learned he had a daughter in 1963.

UCLA chancellor hurt in crash; police ask drunk driving trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — UCLA Chancellor Charles Young remained at UCLA Medical Center today with a broken jaw suffered when his car rammed into a tree early Sunday in Westwood.

Police said they would seek misdemeanor complaints of drunken driving and hit and run against Young. Officers said Young's auto crashed into the tree after he allegedly struck a parked car a half mile away.

Young, 43, was listed in satisfactory condition after surgery on his jaw. He was also treated for facial cuts and bruises.

Police said the chancellor was alone in the car.

Anniversary turns tragic

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A woman helping her husband with target practice was shot dead hours before a party commemorating their golden wedding anniversary, the Salt Lake County sheriff's department said.

Clara B. Hogan, 74, died at a hospital shortly after her husband, Glen, 73, drove her there from a rifle range. Detective Richard R. Judd said.

Judd gave this account of the Saturday incident: Mrs. Hogan was at targets 600 yards in front of her husband as he sighted his .308-caliber rifle. He fired once, she marked his accuracy, walked away from the target and sat down.

Hogan fired two more rounds. When Mrs. Hogan failed to mark the targets, Hogan drove to the spot and found her lying on the ground.

The couple had planned a party to observe their 50th anniversary that night.

Copter caper motive

He's too old to climb the wall

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — Dale Otto Remling says he plotted a daring helicopter escape from the Southern Michigan State prison because he's getting too old to scale its walls.

Remling, 46, is to be arraigned today on skyjacking charges in U.S.

District Court in Detroit and on state kidnaping charges in Jackson. Four others are to be arraigned with him in federal court on a charge of conspiracy to commit air piracy, the FBI said Sunday.

Why did he go to all the trouble of a helicopter escape?

Means shot

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) — Russell Means, the American Indian Movement leader, is recovering after being shot in the abdomen during a scuffle with a Bureau of Indian Affairs policeman.

The BIA said Sunday that the shooting was accidental. But Means, in satisfactory condition at a hospital here, said the BIA's entire account was in error.

The BIA said Means was wounded Saturday when the pistol of Lt. Pat Kelly, 45, accidentally discharged during a scuffle involving Means, other AIM members and Kelly near here. The BIA said Means had been sought earlier in connection with an incident at a Fort Rice tavern.

Means, however, said the man who shot him was not Kelly at all, but Kelly's son.

Means was a leader of American Indians who took and held the town of Wounded Knee, S.D., for 71 days to protest their position in society. Federal charges against him in that occupation were dismissed after a trial. He is now free on $30,000 bond on a charge of being an accomplice in the murder of a South Dakota man who was shot in a bar March 1.

It has been estimated that in the period 1820-1971 the U.S. received 45,533,116 immigrants.

Win bet

WENATCHEE, Wash. (AP) — Bartering plastic Frisbees for lodging in Malaysia and mining opals in Australia, dentist Stan Swanson and his bride Rana backpacked around the world on a 2½-year honeymoon.

"I'm a military brat and had already traveled enough, I thought," Rana said, "relaxing at it's all over." "I was getting the nesting instinct. But Stan had never left Seattle so he wanted to go."

They worked when they ran low on money — for three days as teachers in Fiji, for example, when a Peace Corps director had too many regulars ill.

"I've never taught in my life," said Stan. "I went through a 60-minute general science program in 20 minutes." Rana, an English literature graduate, taught journalism and says she loved it.

Running out of control?

U. S. fears global spread of nuclear arms capability

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fears are mounting again that additional countries may be moving nearer membership in the nuclear weapons fraternity — the exclusive international club that now includes only six countries.

As international commerce in nuclear energy technology grows steadily, the world continues to depend upon a fragile system of treaty and on-site inspections to avert spread of nuclear arms.

Possession of nuclear technologies — once a barrier to nations that might aspire to nuclear weapons — is no longer exclusive.

Concern is being expressed by members of Congress and government nuclear arms-control experts by these recent developments:

—Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., revealed last week that France is supplying nuclear fuel-reprocessing technology and machinery to Pakistan, Taiwan and South Korea and assisting Argentina with a pilot plutonium reprocessing plant.

—The Soviet Union has agreed to supply Libya, an Arab nation with one of the most militant anti-Israel stances, with a small nuclear reactor that apparently would be used for research.

—West Germany reportedly has agreed to sell Brazil nuclear power reactors as well as the technology to enrich uranium for nuclear fuel and reprocess the plutonium in spent fuel. The Latin American country thus could possess its own complete nuclear "fuel cycle" capability, a technology that has been largely restricted to the nations possessing nuclear arms.

"The global spread of nuclear weapons capability is on the verge of running out of control," Ribicoff said.

"... The ability to make atomic bombs will proliferate among nations in our own hemisphere and around the world unless West Germany and other nuclear allies refrain from making clearly dangerous nuclear exports," the senator said.

Fierce competition for nuclear technology exports among such countries such as the U.S., West Germany and France is part of the problem.

Standing in the way of nuclear arms spread is the Non-Proliferation Treaty of 1970, the International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna and international opinion.

More than 80 countries have fully ratified the treaty and more than 20 have signed it, an indication they eventually will become full parties.

As a treaty party, a nation agrees not to develop nuclear weapons and to permit inspections of its nuclear facilities to make certain no material is being diverted for possible use in a weapon.

If a developing nation is determined to build weapons, the more likely approach is to use the peaceful, imported nuclear technology as intended. Then, after a sufficient number of native nuclear technicians have been trained, move them into a fledgling weapons program.

India was accused of using a reactor imported from Canada to help build its first nuclear explosive device. The Indians said they used their own facilities.

But the presence of the Canadian facility for nearly 20 years had an impact on the nation's native technical expertise.

In the end, U.S. arms-control experts say international opinion might be as effective a deterrent as any.

Countries that have ratified the Non-Proliferation Treaty still have an escape clause that allows them to withdraw if extraordinary events threaten their national security.

They also could renege on an agreement with a country that had sold them nuclear technology.

"I don't know what the consequences would be," a government official said about the possibility of backing out of the treaty or an agreement between two countries.

"At the very least, I would hope that all further cooperation with that country's nuclear program would be terminated," he said.

Inspection is the job of the International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna, which sends inspectors into countries with nuclear facilities.

The countries exporting nuclear facilities also are requiring agreements with the country receiving the equipment not to use it for military purposes.

Government sources have said, for example, that West Germany is requiring assurances from Brazil that the new nuclear technology the Germans supply will be used for peaceful purposes only and will be subject to inspection.

HEALTH NEWS . . .

THAT HEADACHE HAS A PAINFUL MEANING

By Dr. W. P. Helzer, D.C.

Of all the so-called triumphs of the pharmaceutical industry, the "headache remedy" is the most dangerous to life and health.

I don't want to convey the image that headache pills are poison and are in themselves dangerous to life. (It should be remembered, however, the government has had to prohibit the distribution of certain "remedies" for this precise reason.)

The real trouble is that the less toxic and the more apparently effective remedy is more dangerous because it over-throws or suppresses a mere symptom, while the trouble caused by the symptom continues to progress, often until it's too late.

Pain, particularly headache pain, is the alarm bell which nature employs to signal "FIRE". And I don't need to remind you, ringing the "fire" alarm never put out the fire.

The long and short of it is that you are playing with fire if you treat a headache rather than its cause.

Sure, there are headaches that have a simple cause. The "morning-after" type, for instance. And it usually passes as soon as its cause — a clogged digestive tract — has been cleared.

Any other headache, particularly if it's chronic or recurring, will send the careful, intelligent person straight to the Doctor.

The causes of headaches are many. They include digestive, eliminative, kidney and heart troubles, eye-strain, infected tonsils, nerve pressure from spinal conditions, and sometimes (although very rarely) brain trouble itself.

In women, disorders of the generative tract are often the cause.

Remember, in no condition will a headache be naturally eliminated until the cause has been determined and corrected.

And I'd like to think that's where we come in.

Do not, however, come in under any delusion that you are bringing in any simple trouble which could be easily corrected with a 29c package of "Pain Killer!"

(Note: Dr. Helzer maintains chiropractic offices at 108 East H Street, Ontario, telephone: 963-1711) (C) ARS 1975

But the same sources are concerned about the intentions of both Brazil and Argentina. Neither country is a party to the Non-Proliferation Treaty. And they don't fully adhere to the provisions of a 1967 Latin America nuclear-free zone treaty.

"They have systematically refused to take on binding commitments not to develop nuclear weapons," a government official said. "That's a real source of concern."

Nuclear weapons now are possessed by the United States, Britain, France, Russia and China. Last year India exploded a nuclear device, but insisted its purpose was for peaceful, engineering applications. India hasn't signed the treaty.

Nuclear weapons experts agree there are at least 10 and possibly more highly industrialized countries with growing nuclear power industries who could develop atomic bombs if they chose to do so.

They include Japan, Belgium, Canada, West Germany, East Germany, the Netherlands, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland and Italy.

Government officials doubt that any of these countries are considering the possibility of building weapons. All of the countries have either signed the Non-Proliferation Treaty or ratified it.

Arms control officials are watching developments in South Korea, Taiwan, Pakistan, South Africa, Israel, Iran and Egypt, in addition to Brazil and Argentina. All the countries are in varying states of developing nuclear power industries.

Of these countries, Taiwan and Iran are full parties to the treaty. South Korea and Egypt have signed the treaty but not ratified it.

Pakistan hasn't signed the treaty and is unlikely to do so as long as India doesn't agree to it.

South Africa has not signed it and isn't expected to. Israel isn't expected to, unless Egypt ratifies it.

Julie goes from steno to star

By DICK KLEINER
HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — A year ago, Julie Kavner was working as a clerk-typist in U.C.L.A.'s graduate department of architecture. Then she was cast as Brenda, the kid sister on CBS's Rhoda series, and her whole life changed.

It's another of those it-can-only-happen-in-Hollywood stories. In those 12 months, Julie Kavner was transformed from nothing to something, from clerk-typist to star.

"The year has really brought me two things," she says. "It made me in demand and it gave me a place at the beach."

In demand? Sure, she was asked to star in stock during her hiatus. She did a seven-week run at a theater near Chicago in "Three On a Honeymoon," without even having to audition. And, because of her TV fame, she was a big drawing card.

The place at the beach, she says, had long been a dream — "a someday-maybe dream" — but it has come true. She rented a Malibu apartment and that's now her home.

"The difference," she says, "is that now, when I redecorate, I can do certain things I didn't do before. I used to get posters and thumbtack them to the wall — but now I frame them. It's the same furniture — furniture my folks had — but somehow it looks better now."

And that's after only one year. Wait 'til next year.

United Artists spent more than $200,000 on one splashy weekend to introduce the new Peter Sellers film, "Return of the Pink Panther." It was like the old Hollywood.

Sellers and producer-director Blake Edwards and many stars were there and so were plenty of press. They had the affair in the plus La Costa resort in Carlsbad near San Diego, and the motif of the weekend was very pink.

There was a screening of the film — a complete delight. Here's one film you can take the family to and know that everybody will enjoy it.

Females in films

Women's Lib stirs movie cauldron

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA)

— More and more films are being started which feature women in the protagonist's role. More and more women are getting bigger and bigger jobs in Hollywood studios. More and more women are selling scripts for movies and TV shows.

The feminist movement is working — at least in Hollywood. And most of the new crop of Hollywood female workers give the credit to the Women's Lib movement, although most say they aren't Women's Libbers themselves.

"I give all the credit to the Women's Lib

movement," says Monique

James, head of Universal's

new talent program. "Oh, absolutely. It was the movement. I'm not a joiner of movements but the movement brought it all to the consciousness of

Hollywood and the producers."

"I don't think anything would have ever happened," says Tina Nides,

Warner Bros.' new story

editor, "without the Women's Lib movement.

Nothing ever happens in this country without a movement to draw attention to it. Nothing ever happens peacefully. It takes violence or something to get anything done."

"I think it all began,"

says successful writer

Leigh Chapman, "when

Women's Lib got so big they couldn't ignore it any more. Now Hollywood

wants films dealing with liberated women."

Miss Chapman says she prefers writing about men

but has just finished a script, "Sunreach," which is "a ladies' script." She says Hollywood is crying for scripts featuring ladies, so she wrote one.

She describes her previous films — items such as "Truck Turner"

and "Dirty Mary, Crazy

Larry" — as "macho" scripts. And she says that the fact that she is a woman (and, incidentally,

a beautiful one) has never held her back in any way.

Actress Tina Louise,

however, believes that women write better for women than men do.

Although she says that times are better for women actors now than they have ever been she still believes it would be even better if there were more women writers

around — "and, of course, as far as I know there are no women directors at all."

But she is optimistic about her own career

because she feels that now,

at last, she can do something other than sex-pot roles. In the new climate of Hollywood, they are letting women play stronger roles. She was,

for example, a costar in

"The Stepford Wives," a controversial women's film.

"I think," she says, "it made a very strong pro

women statement. Really,

it was a warning to women

as to what might happen to them if they don't watch out. And yet some feminists completely misinterpreted it and feel it's anti-woman. It's not, at least I don't think it is."

Veterans' benefits

VA raises home mortgage limits

By RAY CROMLEY
(Seventh in a Series)
WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Public Law 93-569 increased the maximum VA loan guarantee from $12,500 to $17,500 on a conventional home.

Specifically, the Veterans Administration will guarantee the lender against loss on up to 60 per cent of the loan on such a home, but in no case will guarantee more than $17,500.

Special arrangements must be made if the VA does not believe the house is worth what the veteran is paying for it.

The VA will guarantee the lender against loss on up to 30 per cent of the loan on a mobile home and/or the lot for that home.

But the guarantee will not, in any event, exceed $3,750 for a single-wide mobile home, $6,000 for a double-wide mobile home, or $8,250 for a double-wide mobile home and undeveloped lot combination.

The law also provides authority for guaranteeing up to $2,250 on a loan maturing in 12 years for acquisition of a lot, and for necessary site preparation

WHAT YOU'VE GOT COMING IN BENEFITS FOR

for a mobile home already owned by an eligible veteran.

Eligibility for "insured" loans is extended to veterans whose service in the Armed Forces occurred after January 31, 1955, making this group of veterans eligible for benefits under the guaranteed loan program, the direct loan program and the insured loan program on the same basis as veterans of earlier periods of service.

Used mobile homes may be bought under a VA loan guarantee if they meet VA minimum requirements.

The cutoff date for home loan guarantees is removed, which means that until further notice you may apply for a VA loan guarantee on a conventional or mobile home regardless of when you left service, providing you were once eligible and have not otherwise lost that eligibility. That is, the termination provisions of earlier laws — which set the date by which you had to use your right for a loan guarantee — are abolished. Recent laws extend these rights indefinitely.

The new law also provides for restoration of entitlement to a guaranteed, insured or direct loan, provided the prior GI loan has been paid in full and the property disposed of.

We're a great big rollin' railroad movin' fast and runnin' strong.

It may be the age of automation, but it's still people, much more than computers, who keep our great big rollin' railroad rollin'. People who see that the goods and produce you need are delivered dependably and economically. People who move your California-grown and manufactured products to Midwestern and Eastern markets, on time, intact.

We're the Union Pacific, and if you've been looking at us as cold impersonal railroad cars, we suggest you look again... look deeper. You'll see a modern, vital form of transportation moving all types of goods for all types of needs. That's the big reason...

We can handle it.

GALLO WANTS YOU TO BE THE JUDGE

California has enacted legislation guaranteeing farm workers legally binding, secret ballot elections under government supervision.

Enactment of this historic legislation came as a result of the efforts of California's Governor Brown, ourselves and all interested parties. It is in total accord with the resolutions passed by the National Conference of Catholic Bishops and other religious groups calling for a legislative solution to the farm labor problem.

The United Farm Workers Union's reaction to the passage of this law was to immediately announce the intensification of their boycotting efforts.

Continuation of the boycott by the UFW shows contempt for the law which guarantees Farm Workers the right to vote free of outside pressures and also shows disrespect for the democratic process by which it was passed.

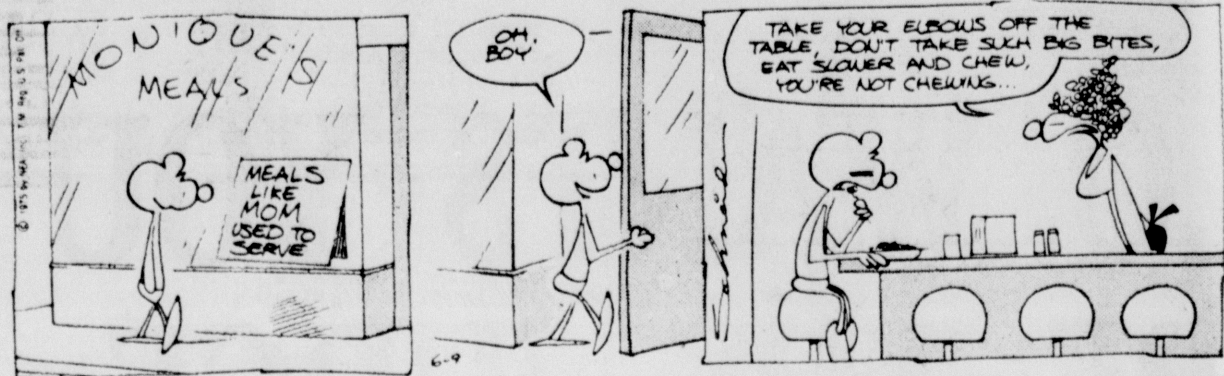

You must ask yourself why the UFW continues to boycott now that there is legislation guaranteeing Farm Workers their inherent rights.

We intend to live up to the letter of the law and ask you to join us in living up to the spirit of the law.

THERE CAN BE NO REASON TO BOYCOTT GALLO

To get toothpaste out of a tube to brush your teeth, you twist off the cap and squeeze. Did you ever wonder how toothpaste gets into a tube?

The secret is that a machine puts the cap on the tube and fills the tube from the bottom.

In the toothpaste factory, empty toothpaste tubes are held upside down on a long moving tray. As each tube passes the filling spout, just the right amount of toothpaste squirts out of the spout to fill each tube.

The filled-up tubes then move past a part of the machine that pinches and clamps the bottom of the tubes shut. Finally, the tubes are packaged for market.

Toothpastes contain a mildly abrasive (gritty) material, such as a finely powdered chalk, and a soaplike substance to help scrub and polish the teeth.

Special sweeteners (other than sugar), and flavoring oils are added to make the toothpaste pleasant to your taste.

A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Walnut cookie
Mixing chopped California walnuts into your favorite cookie recipes makes them richer tasting and crunchy. What's more, adding walnuts is a great way to increase the recipe yield by several more cookies. And when a recipe calls for sprinkling, dipping or rolling in sugar, try finely chopped walnuts instead. They're a crusty touch.

Woman Achiever Contest open

Pomona Valley Women, a supplement of the Progress Bulletin highlighting activities of all women's clubs in Pomona Valley, will be published July 22.

Four Women Achievers, selected by a panel of five judges, will be honored in the edition along with all the women who are represented in reviews of the activities of more than 180 women's organizations.

This year will mark the 10th anniversary of the presentation of trophies to Pomona Valley women.

The Women Achievers will be paid tribute for their contributions of time and service to their community at a luncheon later in July. Former honorees will be feted along with the 1975 awardees. The luncheon is open to all Pomona Valley women.

Nomination blanks, mailed last week, must be returned to the Family Section of the Progress Bulletin not later than June 11.

Fact sheets for club inclusion in the annual edition have also been sent to the president or publicity chairman of every club listed with the Family Section. Deadline for return of the club forms is June 25.

Additional Woman Achiever forms for nominating persons may be obtained at the Family Section desk at the Progress Bulletin.

SLIM 'N' TRIM — The West End YMCA will offer a free, introductory class in slimmastics Tuesday for women wanting to improve and slim their figures.

A morning session will be from 9:30 to 11 a.m. and an evening session from 8 to 9:30. The classes will meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Slimmastics will offer help in regaining vigor, trimming and reducing fatty tissues, increasing flexibility, toning and firming muscles, improving posture and circulation, and give tips on proper nutrition and beauty hints for a more youthful appearance.

For more information, persons may contact the YMCA at 215 W. C St., Ontario. The telephone number is 986-5847.

FREE FILM — The General Telephone Co. is offering an 18-minute color film, titled "The General Direction," which shows how the utility is dealing with today's economy.

The film, being loaned to civic groups and service clubs, features the company's billing improvement program, use of subcompacts to replace standard-sized vehicles, and the creation of a "phone mart" where customers may come into a telephone "supermarket" and pick up the type of telephone they want and take it home.

Those wanting to view the film may contact the utility's business office.

SMOG POOL — More than half the employees surveyed recently in San Bernardino County employment centers reported they were willing to form carpools on smog episode days.

The survey included 1,875 employees working for six firms in Redlands, San Bernardino, Colton and Cucamonga. Some 600 said they were interested in forming daily car pools.

Conducting the survey was the Inland Area Commuter Computer which provides a free carpool matching service. It works with employers to increase carpools in Riverside and San Bernardino counties.

In an initial contact with employees last summer, only 10 to 12 per cent expressed an interest for car pools. The increased interest now results from a growing belief in the long-range energy problems; a growing awareness of the cost of commuting alone; and more employers seriously urging employees to carpools.

Persons wanting more information may contact the California Department of Transportation office in San Bernardino. The telephone number is 383-3277.

World War II, Korea outfit

224th Infantry Regiment planning for first reunion

Reservations are being taken for the first reunion of the officers and enlisted men of the 224th Infantry Regiment of the 40th National Guard Division Sept. 6 at the Santa Ana Elks Lodge according to publicity chairman Jim Townsend.

The 224th Infantry Regiment was retired in 1954 as a designated unit of the 40th Division, but in September 1950 the unit was the elite regiment when the National Guard was mobilized while headquartered in Ontario during the early part of the Korean conflict.

Pomona's heavy-tank company which was at full strength with 93 enlisted men and five officers was attached to the regiment.

Other units in the area called to active duty included Ontario's headquarters and headquarters company and service company and Upland's medical company.

The 40th Division was one of two National Guard divisions to see action in the Korean Conflict. The other was the 45th from Oklahoma.

Townsend said that most of the officers and top enlisted men that were recalled that September were World War II veterans, making it a second time around for them, while the privates and lower junior grades were barely out of high school.

The men went on to compile a brilliant war record, with Army brass calling the outfit the best rained infantry division ever sent into combat.

Townsend said that the reunion is open to anyone who ever served in the 224th Regiment.

WILL A HEARING AID HELP YOU?

Be Positive!
TRY Before You Buy!
Rent A Hearing Aid
That Helps Reduce Competing Sounds

For years many hearing aid wearers have complained that in most communications competing sounds around them are the greatest obstacles to hearing clearly. Clinical studies have shown the MAICO Mark 100 Series hearing aids with patented directional microphone system do not amplify fully many of these distracting, irritating sounds and allow the wearer to hear better more clearly. Will this type of hearing aid help you? Wear one for 30 days at a moderate rental charge to tell for sure! IF YOU DECIDE TO KEEP THE AID, THE FULL RENTAL COST IS APPLIED TO THE PURCHASE PRICE. If you don't keep the aid your only cost is the rental charge and there is no further obligation. Call today for full information. Product for certain types of hearing loss only.

7 WAYS TO CUT YOUR AIR CONDITIONING COSTS.

KEEP TEMPERATURE AT 78°

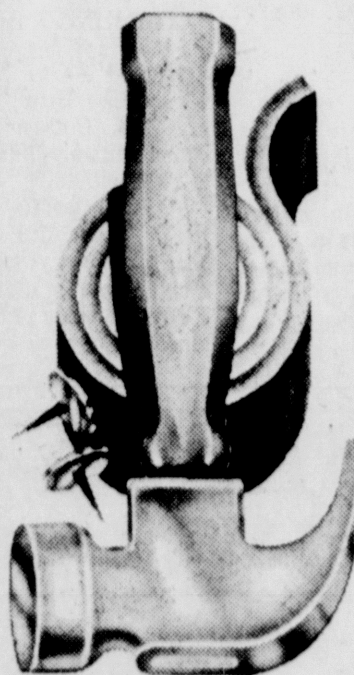

During hot summer months, you can cut air conditioning costs substantially by cooling a room—or your whole house—no lower than 78°. It could cost about 30% less for air conditioning if you keep the temperature at 78° instead of 70°. If you use a room air conditioner, hang a thermometer on the wall. Check it to see that the room temperature drops no lower than 78°. Remember: air conditioning is not to make you cold—just comfortable.

INSULATE YOUR HOME

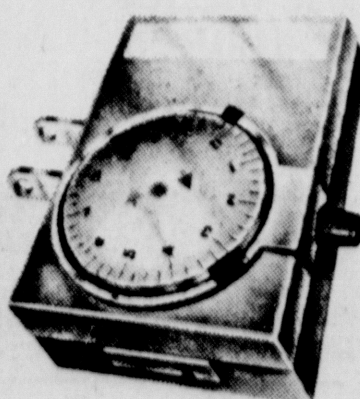

If you do not have insulation in your attic—or if you have too little—you could be using up to twice the energy necessary for air conditioning your house. (More energy to heat it, too.) Insulation can be blown into most attics. It's an investment which merits your consideration. For information, see your local insulation contractor. And don't forget to weatherstrip doors and windows.

CONSIDER AN AUTOMATIC TIMER

Timer attachments are available that will turn off your room air conditioner when you go to work and turn it on before you come home.

4.

INVESTIGATE AN ENERGY-SAVING UNIT

If you're in the market for a room air conditioner, compare the Energy Efficiency Ratio (EER) numbers. The higher the number shown, the more cooling you get from the electricity you use.

5.

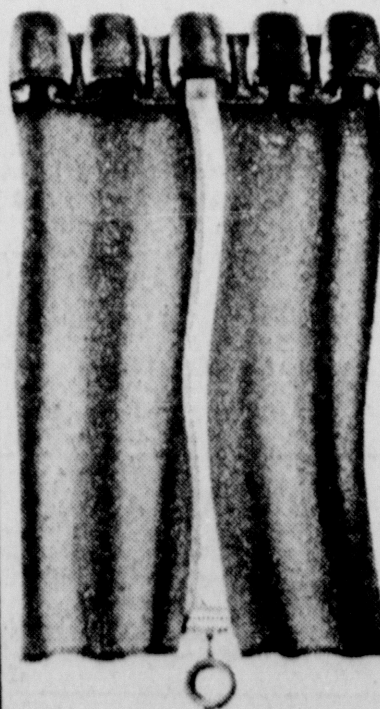

COOL ONLY ROOMS IN USE

If you have a room unit, keep all doors closed to the room you're cooling. Of course, no matter what system you use, whenever you air condition keep the outside doors and windows closed throughout the house.

6.

KEEP THE HEAT OUT

When the children (or family pet) go out, don't forget to close the door. Keep the windows closed, too. And draw your draperies and blinds. Outside awnings or other sun screens will also reduce your cooling needs.

7.

KEEP EQUIPMENT CLEAN

Clean accessible parts, but be careful not to damage them. Check filters every month and clean or replace as needed.

The cost of electricity has been going up, primarily because of the soaring cost of the foreign oil we must buy to burn in generating plants. The increasing costs of oil and the additional amounts we have had to buy are responsible for the total increase in the price of electricity since last summer.

Your air conditioning could use more energy than any other home appliance this summer. So use it wisely. Conserve. For other ways to conserve, write for our free booklet: "Conservation," Edison, P.O. Box 800, Rosemead, California 91770.

La Verne grads told to equate life, study

More than 850 graduates at La Verne College were told Sunday that the completion of their degrees meant more than just an education — more importantly, it meant immersion in a learning experience.

That was the tenor of messages to graduates and post graduates by class speakers Susan Schultz who represented seniors, by Robert Evans who spoke for the law students and by Justin Anthony Egnor who spoke for off-campus graduates. "Interacting with professors and other students is a human experience," Miss Schultz explained. "It is more than just learning and leaving. It is life itself."

Egnor, a 44-year-old military man from Vandenberg Air Force Base, said he needed his degree and education to advance in today's job market. He said this was the motivation for college of most of those who were in the field studies program of the college.

Evans said that to him studying meant practicing. "The word practice alone means there is some uncertainty involved, similar to the life experience."

In his response, Leland B. Newcomer, president of the college, told the audience that the college's aim is "service to all mankind."

Presiding at ceremonies was Donald Clague, dean of graduate and professional studies. Participants also included Robert Neher, acting dean of undergraduate studies, Judge Paul Egly, dean of the La Verne College Law Center, and Mrs. Mary E. LaFetra, chairman of the College's Board of Trustees.

Parties turn to rioting

At least six police cars were damaged with two adults and a number of juveniles arrested on charges ranging from assault with deadly weapons on peace officers to curfew violations after officers attempted to break up large noisy parties in Ontario and Cucamonga.

Ontario police about 2:30 a.m. Sunday responded to complaints from a number of residents in the area of Elm Street and Muscatel Avenue, responded to a home in the vicinity. While several officers were arresting a group of juveniles on curfew violations, Officers James Anderson stepped out of his car and a man threw a beer bottle at him. Anderson ducked and the bottle shattered against the police car's hood.

Other officers reported that a large group of persons began pelting their police cars with rocks and bottles and called for assistance from the West End Sheriff's Department.

When sheriff's officers arrived one sheriff's car had its windshield shattered by a rock.

Within 10 minutes police arrested Freddy Joseph Armijo, 24, of 204 E. DeAnza Circle on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon on a peace officer, and three juveniles for resisting arrest and curfew violations. The juveniles were released to their parents and the adult booked in the West End Jail. No officers were injured in the incident.

At 6 p.m. Sunday West End sheriff's deputies were called to a large party at 9885 Jersey St., in the Northtown area of Cucamonga to break up a large high school graduation party where a number of persons were reported fighting. While deputies were attempting to restore order a number of rocks and bottles were thrown at the sheriff's cars. Several were damaged.

West End officers, fearing more violence called for assistance from Ontario police and sheriff's units from Fontana and Yucaipa. For nearly an hour deputies continued efforts to restore order at the party and finally ordered partygoers to disband.

During the melee two sheriff's units were damaged and a Henry Gomez Anguiano, 18, of 9885 Jersey St., arrested on suspicion of battery on a police officer. Three juveniles also were arrested on for resisting arrest and taken into custody. Anguiano was booked in the West End Jail and the youths turned over to juvenile authorities for disposition.

Deputies said fighting began with a number of Cucamonga youths battling Ontario youths.

Massage parlor robbed by two young bandits

Two young bandits robbed a Pomona massage parlor early Saturday, and also took money from a customer who walked in during the robbery.

Officers said one man entered the Swedish Salon, 1293 N. Garey Ave. at 5 a.m., looked around and asked a receptionist questions. Five minutes later, a second man walked in, showed employees a .38 caliber revolver and demanded cash.

There was a brief scuffle, and one employee was knocked down. A customer walked in afterwards and was confronted by one of the suspects. The customer's wallet, containing $140 in cash, was taken.

CAMPING IS A REWARDING EXPERIENCE FOR ANY CHILD.

Send-a-kid-to-camp

Moses sat and watched as his mother held a rummage sale and sold all their belongings.

His father wasn't home and a strange man kept kissing his mother. Moses sat quietly on the curb in front of his home with his two younger brothers beside him.

When the sale was over, Moses' mother told them to wait quietly in the big empty living room of their house for their father to return.

That was the last time Moses saw his mother. When his father returned he found his three sons hungry and crying in an empty two bedroom house. Moses mother had abandoned the family after selling the car, all the furniture, and emptying their bank account.

Moses' father, who worked as a truck driver, was inconsolable. Two months later he killed himself.

Moses and his brothers now live with their grandmother. But life is difficult for this 10-year old boy. He is very shy and feels that he must always be with his brothers and act as the head of the household as his father once did.

Moses' counselors believe that he needs to get away from his family and be on his own for a while. He needs to mingle with other children and be given the chance to be a child for at least one week of his life.

One week at summer camp can help Moses and other children like him. It can restore their confidence in people and help them to cope with their environmental difficulties.

Your dollars can make it all possible.

Armour tells grads

You can't escape from the present, plan for future

"You should not try to escape from the present, which is inescapable, and you should make plans, sometimes called contingency plans, for the future," Pomona College graduates were told during the 82nd annual commencement ceremonies in Bridges Auditorium, Claremont, on Sunday.

Richard Armour, a 1927 alumnus of Pomona College and nationally known author, coupled satiric verse with serious advice in encouraging his audience to keep learning from their past and from human history.

More than 2,000 townspeople, faculty members, students and friends and relatives attended the event with the 278 June graduates and another 41 graduates who completed their academic work earlier in the year.

Armour said he is skeptical about the expression, "the foreseeable future."

"I don't think the future is foreseeable, not even a year or a month or a day or an hour from now," he said. "That's one of the special qualities of the future, and I'm rather glad of it. If the future is going to be bad, I don't want to know about it, since it would spoil my enjoyment of the present. If the future is going to be good, I'll let it be a pleasant surprise."

Describing life as a "kind of a book," Armour said: "All of us must read it page by page. We cannot skip to the end and learn how it all comes out."

"We can't skim or skip over to the end — but we think we can."

Armour noted that there is a steady public interest in the future, and interest has been manifested by professionals predicting what will happen to the earth's depleted resources, man's hypertense society, and man's stagnating capacity to produce goods and services.

Armour admonished potential prognosticators that if they want to predict the future, "tell us what things will be like in 2,000, the roundest number around. I suggest you make gloomy predictions. Then, if you are wrong, people will be so happy they'll forgive you."

Pamela Muir of Claremont was awarded "summa cum laude" (with highest honors), one of six to be so honored.

Honorary degrees were awarded to Jean Goodwin Ames of Claremont, nationally known artist and teacher, who received a doctor of fine arts degree, and Fredric J. Robbins, Oak Brook, Ill., retired Chicago area steel executive, who received an honorary doctor of science degree.

Earlier in the commencement exercises, Pomona College President David Alexander announced the names of four faculty members who received Wig Distinguished Professorship Awards for distinguishing themselves by the quality of their teaching, concern for students, for research and writing and for special services to the college and community.

Awards of $2,500 each were given to Jean B. Walton, dean of students and dean of women; Hans-Dieter Brueckner, professor of German; Karl G. Kohn, professor of music and composer in residence; and Martha E. Andersen, assistant professor of English.

Fire damages apartment

Fire raced through an apartment at 473 E. County Road in Pomona Sunday night, causing $6,000 in damages.

Pomona firemen said cause of the fire, which broke out in a bedroom about 9:20 p.m., was still under investigation.

The family dog, Rusty, was dragged from the home unconscious, but revived by firemen. Occupants of the residence, Dennis and Susie White, were not home at the time of the fire.

The blaze caused $4,000 damage to the property and $2,000 to contents.

It also caused damage to a next-door apartment at 487 E. County Road. Minor heat damage to the roof and a broken window was reported by firemen.

Also, someone tossed a molotov cocktail into a car parked at 1303 Packard St., Pomona, causing a fire which destroyed the auto Saturday. Joe Sandoval was the owner of the 1965 Ford.

Firemen also fought two grass fires Sunday, one in Ganesha Park and two at Claude Ostten Park in west Pomona.

Fire investigators, who did not know how many acres of grass was destroyed, said the fires at ostten Park about 4 p.m. were believed started by a motorcycle rider.

General Dynamics contract

The General Dynamics Corp. plant in Pomona has received an $18 million contract to produce a variation of the Redeye missile, a surface-to-air weapon used by the Army.

General Dynamics officials said no further information could be released because of security problems.

Follow your own drummer, Scripps College grads told "You, I, each of us has the power to choose bright or muddled stars and follow them. May you hear clearly and follow courageously your own distant drummer," Dr. Kathleen Brogan Schwarz told the 136 Scripps College graduates, their parents and friends at the college's 45th annual commencement Sunday on Elm Tree Lawn on the campus, Claremont.

Dr. Schwarz, a Scripps alumna who is a fellow in pediatric gastroenterology and nutrition at St.

Louis Children's Hospital, developed her topic, "A Different Drummer," into a series of suggestions for living a full and rewarding life combining career, marriage and parenthood.

Two wounded during fight

Two young men were wounded by gunfire as the climax to a gang fight in the Valinda area early Sunday morning, sheriff's deputies said.

Robert A. McMillan, 19, was wounded in the neck and Joseph R. Verdugo, 15, was struck in the thigh. Both youths, from the Valinda area, were reported in satisfactory condition at West Covina's Queen of the Valley Hospital.

Deputies arrested one suspect in the shooting. Twenty-five-year-old Robert C. Letholt, 25, La Puente, was booked on suspicion of assault with intent to commit murder. Deputies were seeking four others.

Investigators said the trouble began with a fist-fight at Lark Ellen Avenue south of Francisquito Avenue shortly after 1 a.m. Then someone drew a pistol and began shooting. Deputies said they were uncertain about the number of individuals involved in the clash which they described as gang-related.

She noted friends of hers successful in their chosen careers and in their marriages possess four distinct qualities — a passionate determination to succeed; a nonchalance about the combination, considering "it no big deal;" humility and the realization that their time must be strictly rationed; and gratitude to their immediate families for supporting their efforts.

Dr. Schwarz, who took the National Medical Boards two days after her son's birth in the St. Louis, Mo. Maternity Hospital, enumerated four qualities for success.

"You must possess critical thoroughness, courage and self-belief, alacrity with acumen and selfishness," she said.

She urged the graduates to develop a listening spirit and pursue their individual goals.

Dr. Schwarz also reflected on the changes at Scripps since her 1964 graduation, commenting on the increased emphasis on career counseling and interest in professions which, 15 years ago, were considered out-of-reach.

"This year 17 per cent of all students attending the 144 medical schools in the United States are women. Next year the percentage will rise to 20," she said, also remarking on a recent study showing women's colleges graduates excel in becoming leaders in varied fields.

Motorcyclist injured in collision with car

A 23-year-old Manhattan Beach man was injured Sunday when a motorcycle he was riding collided with a car making a left turn onto Camelia Avenue from D Street in Ontario.

Terry Thomas Gilbert of Manhattan Beach this morning was listed in fair condition in San Bernardino County Hospital following the 3:45 p.m. accident. Gilbert suffered leg and head injuries in the accident and was first treated at Ontario Community Hospital.

Police said the motorcycle collided broadside with the car driven by Debbie Jean Hass, 24, of 1155 W. D St., Ontario.

A Pomona man was arrested on suspicion of intoxication a short time after his car was involved in a traffic collision Saturday night on the San Bernardino Freeway east of Vineyard Ave. in Ontario.

The highway patrol reported that the car of Bobby G. Swindle, 33, of 648 Burdick Drive ran into the rear of a car driven by Jose H. Munoz, 35, of Guasti, slightly injuring Munoz' passenger, Abigail Munoz, 24.

Swindle drove on after the accident, according to the highway patrol, and was discovered a short time later in a telephone booth at a market at Fourth Street and Vineyard Avenue by an Ontario officer who booked him for investigation of intoxication. The highway patrol is also investigating possible hit and run charges.

Mrs. Munoz said she would see her own doctor for treatment.

The highway patrol also investigated two injury accidents in the Chino area Saturday night.

Cars driven by Terry Lyn Homan, 16, of Corona, and Thomas A. Hansen, 19, of 12140 Dunlap Place, Chino, collided at Euclid and Chino avenues. Hansen's passenger, Terry Vote, 18, of 4804 Harrison Ave., Chino, was hurt slightly. She was treated at Chino General Hospital and released.

Douglas D. Crabtree, 24, of 12450 Marshall Ave., Chino, escaped with minor injuries when his car went off a sharp curve on Pomona-Rincon Road east of the Corona Expressway and rolled over several times coming to rest on its top on a barbed wire fence. The car flattened 15 feet of fence and three steel posts.

Crabtree was treated at Chino General Hospital and released.

Only N.Y. can save itself

The nation's eye is on the apple — the "Big Apple," New York City.

Staggering under the long-term burden of a debt larger than that of the entire United States before the Depression and faced with the immediate need to raise some $1 billion just to meet its short-term cash flow demands, the nation's greatest metropolis stumbles from the fiscal crisis to another and verges on bankruptcy.

Simply stated, New York City has long been living beyond its means. Denied rescue by the federal Treasury and granted only temporary relief in the form of a $200-million advance by the state, Mayor Abe Beame has presented New Yorkers with a "horror list" of drastic budget cuts, including the layoffs of 38,000 municipal employees in a city in which one out of seven people is already on some form of public welfare.

Now if New York only had the power to print money, all its problems would be solved — on paper and by means of paper. That's what the federal government, which has also long been living beyond its means, does when it spends more than it takes in.

But then every other city with money problems — and that includes most of them — would want the same power and the country would be in a worse situation than it was before the establishment of the national government, when every state was sovereign unto itself.

New York's plight is the plight of other cities, only magnified many times. And only New York can save itself from itself.

Norway's dubious gift

While Britons are anxiously looking to the arrival of North Sea oil as their salvation from impending economic catastrophe, the Norwegians are just as anxiously wondering what they are going to do with their share of the bonanza and how it's going to affect their society.

Because it can use only a fraction of the oil it can drill, Norway should be able to export all but 10 million tons of its projected 90-million-ton annual output from Ekofisk, the first of several rich fields lying astride the British-Norwegian boundary dividing the North Sea that is expected to begin flowing this summer.

Norway stands to earn at least $4 billion annually from oil exports. In a nation of only four million persons, this kind of money will go a long way. The question is: What way?

The issue "has been positively traumatic to underpopulated, bucolic Norway" and has split the nation politically and socially, writes UPI European diplomatic correspondent Richard C. Longworth.

"We see the possibilities it offers," says Odd Goethe, an oil expert in the Industry Ministry, "but we are afraid our new wealth will be used wrong, and we will have a rich man's problems."

Environmentalists and conservatives have even found common ground with the far-left Marxist Socialist Peoples Party (SPP).

"We are very much afraid that this oil boom could tear Norwegian society," says SPP chairman Stein Oernhoei. "Norway is better than any other country in the Western world. We want to keep it that way."

Some Norwegians want to use the oil earnings to improve schools, welfare, roads. Others want it to go directly to consumers to raise the standard of living. Others hope it will ease Norway's crushing tax rate, which takes some 40 per cent out of the average paycheck.

The government has attempted to compromise between environmentalists, who want production limited to 50 million tons a year, and oil firms and foreigners, who want maximum production. The compromise is an official decision setting output at a maximum average of 90 million tons a year into the 1980s.

But in view of the fact that all North Sea Production, including smaller amounts from Danish, Dutch and West German wells, will still supply only 15 to 20 per cent of the 11 or 12 billion barrels needed by Europe every year, the pressure on Norway to increase its drilling is expected to be intense.

Thoughts

Print names of juveniles

Dear Editor: I am writing in response to the recent crime rate among juveniles, not only in our community, but across other parts of the country as well.

I was recently subpoenaed to court as a witness in a case against a 14-year-old boy to determine whether he needed to obtain some type of counseling or psychiatric help.

As soon as I gave my testimony, I was ushered out of the courtroom. To this date, I have not found out what, if anything, was done to help the boy. I was told by a probation officer and also a deputy district attorney that "in the matters of a juvenile the results are not given out. Such matters are confidential."

In my opinion, since I received a subpoena, and if I did not appear I would be in contempt of court and thereby could be fined $100 or sent to jail. I feel I have a right to know what the outcome of the hearing was.

I used to wonder why people did not want to get involved in seeing justice done, but now I get the message loud and clear. The laws are set up to protect the criminals or would be criminals, not the law abiding citizen.

I think it's about time for the public, the legislature, and anyone else concerned to stop protecting the malicious juveniles and put their names in the paper and be treated as an adult if they can do the same things only to be turned loose and not only do a repeat performance, but maybe worse.

At least let the public be informed.

Their names are certainly published in the obituary columns. True, there are many fine young adults but many more with no supervision run the streets to do destructive damage with no regard to others' property.

Since I have two sons approaching their teens, I think it's time for other parents to wake up and find out what their kids are doing and at least try to help them should they need it.

The hands of the police are tied. They try to protect the innocent, but they, like the law abiding citizen, can only do so much. If they try for a conviction someone yells police brutality so the case usually is dropped. The affairs of the world don't look too bright for our children, do they?

DEA chief forced out

WASHINGTON — We began a series of columns last January exposing malfeasance, misfeasance and nonfeasance inside the Drug Enforcement Administration. We charged that internal dissension had crippled the agency and had weakened the war against narcotics.

Our articles triggered a series of events which has culminated in the forced resignation of Administrator John Bartels. He was asked to resign by Deputy Atty. Gen. Harold Tyler.

Bartels resisted at first, saying he needed time "to sleep on it." He immediately got in touch with one of his predecessors, Myles Ambrose, now an influential Washington attorney, who phoned the White House in Bartels' behalf.

But the White House refused to save Bartels. The next morning, he met again with Tyler and asked for still more time to decide. A few hours later, Tyler notified Bartels that his time was up.

Our sources say Bartels was bounced to take the sting out of hearings scheduled this week by Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash. His subcommittee has been investigating the charges we raised in our columns. We disclosed, for example, that:

—Top narcotics officials had been so busy investigating one another that they had little time to cope with the dope dealers.

—Despite record high budgets, DEA had been unable to stem the flow of heroin into the country. An estimated 125,000 new addicts, we reported, became hooked in the past year alone.

—The handling of internal corruption cases was sloppy. We quoted from a confidential management study, which warned that the number of unresolved corruption cases leaves "the agency in an embarrassing situation."

—We reported that corrupt DEA agents had been caught dealing in the drugs they were supposed to be suppressing.

—As early as 1960, the drug enforcement apparatus maintained close ties with the Central Intelligence Agency. DEA has 64 former CIA employees on its payroll and another 13 narcotics agents were trained by the CIA at its supersecret counterespionage school, we reported.

—And we revealed that the drug agents maintained love traps for the CIA in New York City and San Francisco. Foreign diplomats were lured into these apartments by prostitutes in the pay of the CIA, which filmed the sexual adventures through hidden one-way mirrors and later tried to blackmail the victims into becoming informants.

We began our investigation of the DEA in November 1974, two months before we published the first story. Our associate, Bob Owens, confronted the DEA with charges that Bartels was covering up an investigation of an assistant, Vincent Promuto.

Thereafter, DEA kept a sharp eye on us. One internal memo warned that we were "familiar" with "the Promuto matter." Later, Bartels drafted a four-page, single-spaced response to one of our columns and ordered every DEA employee to read it.

From Thailand to Turkey, DEA agents were also instructed to make sure Bartels' opus was published in the local newspapers. The DEA office in Thailand gave up, explaining in a memo that "none of the Bangkok newspapers subscribe to Jack Anderson's columns." But in most places, Bartels' orders were meticulously obeyed. Responding to our charges, it seemed, had priority over fighting the drug smugglers.

The Seattle regional director assured Bartels that "all supervisors were held responsible to insure that each employee read and initialed" the four-page opus. In Boston, the regional director "personally read Mr. Bartels' letter to all Boston regional office agents." In Detroit, the regional director boasted that he had submitted the letter to the Detroit Free Press under his own signature.

Battling the boondoggles

Despite the economic slump of recent months, the federal "boondoggle" business is still booming.

Awhile back, the federal government gave a grant to some researchers to study something called "The Demography of Happiness." They wanted to find out why some people lead happier lives than others. They discovered that younger people were happier than older people. Those with money were happier than those who were broke; and healthy people were happier than ill people. The cost: $249,000. Nearly a quarter of a million dollars to find out that it's better to be young, rich and healthy than old, sick and poor!

In another case, a magazine receiving funds from the National Foundation on the Arts published a one-word poem, for which it paid the author $500. The word was "Light." That would be hilarious if it weren't for the fact that some Americans go to bed hungry or without jobs while the federal arbiters of taste hand out frivolous gifts from the public purse.

The Food and Drug Administration paid a Buffalo, N.Y., firm to study

why children fall off tricycles. The research engineers made these profound conclusions: children fall off tricycles because they lose their balance or collide with an object! They also learned that children's legs grow longer as they grow older, thus complicating tricycle riding.

The purpose behind the study was to help the FDA decide if it should issue safety design standards for tricycles. If the government has any business considering such things, it should only be after someone has shown that a lot of kids are injured riding tricycles. No word of such a problem preceded the study.

The venerable Smithsonian Institution (federally funded, of course) puts in for some of the most exotic boondoggles. One shopping list it sent Congress included the following research projects: Reproductive Rhythms of Catfish in India; How Fishing Boat Crews Cause Conflicts Yugoslavian Peasant Towns; and a study of Polish Bisexual Frogs.

Such studies may serve a larger, more serious purpose, but one can only wonder why private research sources, colleges and universities aren't taking these projects on for themselves. The frog study, for example, was intended to test some new methods of distinguishing between one species of animal and another. That seems like a legitimate objective of scientific research, but is that what we have a federal government for?

While the auto and housing industries decline, there is a relatively new cottage industry that is thriving. It takes advantage of federal boondoggles in the name of science and culture.

It consists of a small army of bright wordsmiths who will — for a fee — help prospective grantees dream up serious-sounding titles and rationale for their projects in order to impress Congress and federal agencies.

That Congress takes such stuff seriously at all is a measure of how far we have strayed from the original purposes of federal government. There are a few congressmen who battle the boondoggles, who say, in effect, "Hey, wait a minute — what business does government have paying for this? Where's the benefit to the taxpayers?" If only we had a few hundred more like them.

Just in jest

The old order changeth!

A University of Maryland research program has definitely given the lie to the age-old contention that Justice is blind. And the logic of their finding is self evident. The study shows that Judges and Juries give lighter sentences to pretty girl criminals than they do to just plain Janes.

And here's another of the truisms, drummed into me in the days of my youth, that is now undergoing some drastic revisions. — "You must learn to give and take if you want to be a success in life." I was repeatedly informed. But try to tell that today to any corporation officer or politician. They've learned, much to their discomfort, that it is neither blessed to give nor to receive.

Answers to old problems

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — The United States could well profit from the example of the saber tooth tiger.

This animal is extinct. It was unable to adapt to new conditions.

Recently collected data demonstrates that this same inability to adjust to change is growing at an alarming rate in both industry and government.

There's a noticeable lag in shifting direction to cope with new discoveries in science and technology.

This is costly in that billions are poured into obsolete systems. And dangerous in that it weakens our defenses and industry's ability to compete. Economically it breeds inflation and slows the rate at which wages and profits grow. And it leads to dangerous shortages—in energy, for one.

Take an example which few talk about, the estimated $2 billion being poured into the first liquid metal fast breeder reactor.

This started out as an exceedingly worthwhile, if expensive, project. It was clear from the beginning that we would run short of petroleum eventually. Conventional nuclear power plants use uranium at far too rapid a rate. That something had to be done was recognized here, in Japan and in Western Europe.

Until recently it appeared, at least to many of those concerned, that research and development in the breeder reactor, which turns out nuclear fuel as a byproduct, would be worth every cent of the $2 billion cost of the first projected demonstration power plant.

But science moves on. Of late it has become clear that lasers could be used effectively for the efficient separation of substances—especially, economical relatively when the substance to be separated is one part in 140, and even more so when the separation involves extracting one part in 5,000.

This changes the nuclear power picture. It now makes the separation of fuel needed for the heavy water reactor so cheap that this "simpler" form of nuclear power producer seems much more feasible for the intermediate future than the more complicated liquid metal fast breeder type. It stretches the available uranium 10 times, meaning that supplies will probably last 100 years or so. By then, presumably, we will have developed a fusion reactor or some other type using even cheaper fuels.

The time has come, therefore, to cut back sharply on the exceedingly expensive liquid metal fast breeder reactor development and divert hundreds of millions of dollars of this money into more promising fields.

But the government and the scientific community are showing great reluctance to even consider such a cutback. Too many top flight men are committed to the program. Prestige is at stake.

This is but one example. In Washington there are dozens more projects of great magnitude and hundreds of middle and minor cutbacks and shifts which should be carried out immediately to take advantage of new knowledge.

But before we too quickly jeer at Washington, we had better look at our own local private industries where reluctance to change is frequently equally great, leading to higher prices, higher unemployment and to products which are not of the quality we should be getting.

Insome cases the research is available and the required engineering known. In other cases, the new research lines are not being followed because the university and company laboratories are too busy following research dominated by "last year's" knowledge . . . or even the knowledge of a decade ago.

FOLLOW-UP:

We have thrice warned readers against Ernie Tucker and Unique Ideas of New York.

As we reported, Margaret M. Brobson, consumer affairs associate of the U.S. Postal Service, notified us six weeks ago that Tucker and Unique Ideas were under investigation and his mail was being held up temporarily.

Now one of our readers, S. H. of Upland, has been informed by E. M. Hamm, postal inspector, that a preliminary injunction has been obtained against Tucker and his firm through the U.S. District Court, Southern District of New York.

Tucker used the mails to enlist salesmen for mink and sable novelties.

One of our readers paid $63 for "samples and other materials" which proved to be 480 names and addresses and 500 flyers describing and showing pictures of the novelties.

His name and address were printed on the flyers. There was no mention of Ernie Tucker and Unique Ideas.

When he finally received an order, he asked Unique Ideas to send the items C.O.D. Tucker wouldn't do that. The reader was told the money had to be included with the order. This left him with no assurance that he would get the order and no proof that Unique Ideas was connected with the sale.

Another reader paid a total of $115 to Unique Ideas and didn't get anything for three months. When we alerted postal authorities, he received a package which he has never opened. His eyes are wide open now, however, to the ways of mail order con artists.

One of Tucker's quirks was to require prospective salesmen to sign an honesty pledge.

In December 1973 I asked a jeweler in the Monterey area to make a ring for me using a small opal that I had. To date neither the ring nor the opal has been returned. The jeweler also has another small opal that he was to return but did not.

Communication was difficult as he has moved three times since our first meeting and has been in the hospital many times in the meantime.

We also have moved from Monterey to Pomona and due to his moving around did not get to see him before leaving that area.

On the phone he promised to send the merchandise but never has. Recently he said he would not send it by mail because some of the jewelry he has been sending never reached its destination.

I do not care whether he returns the stones unmounted or mounts the large one. Both stones, although not large, have sentimental value to me. —D.B., Pomona.

The jeweler answered your letter with a different version of the unfinished transaction.

He says one stone was mounted and delivered to you after you were called several times long distance and asked to pick it up.

You promised to pick up the second stone after it was mounted, he claims, but did not, so eventually he removed the stone from the ring and sold it as a used ring at cost.

After you moved to Southern California, according to his story, you asked that the opal be shipped to you. He didn't want to do this because of charges and the uncertainty that it would reach you.

A sign in his shop, he states, says that work left over 30 days may be sold for charges. He claims he feels he has been more than fair in holding your property all this time without selling it.

He says you have threatened legal action and he has turned that letter over to his attorney so we will leave resolution of this matter to you, him and the legal profession.

I have your Progress Bulletin insurance and just recently went through a series of blood tests and x-rays. I wonder if I can collect any money on the policy. —Mrs. H. H., China.

The answer to your question about the National Casualty Co. probably is no. The policy covers accidents and some of the "dread" diseases. An example is leukemia.

If it turns out that you are eligible, call the Progress Bulletin insurance department and request a claim form.

Husband not yet in grave...

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell can hardly write but I need advice, and fast. A friend whom I haven't seen in a month phoned to say her husband had surgery a few days ago and in her words, "It doesn't look as if Bernie will make it."

I started to express my sympathy and she interrupted with, "Please ask Jim if he will serve as a pallbearer. The casket I'm considering is heavy and I'll need some strong men."

I asked in as tactful a way as I could if her husband was still "with us." She replied, "Yes, Bernie is still alive, but as I told you, the doctor says it doesn't look good. I want to get as many things as possible done ahead of time." I agreed to ask Jim if he would be a pallbearer and requested that she let us know "if and when the time comes."

Just as I was about to ring off she wondered if I thought it would be all right if she wore a light-green, knit suit. She said, "I hate black and I look terrible in it." Then she added, "My green hat is brand new and I haven't had a chance to wear it yet." I told her the decision should be hers.

I just got off the phone and don't know what to make of it. How can I ask my husband if he will be a pallbearer for a man who is still living? Is the woman batty? I need some advice. — Stunned in Steubenville

Dear S.: It sounds as if the poor thing has had more than her share of anxiety. Tell your husband about the call, inform your friend of his decision, and request that she keep you posted.

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell "Mind Of My Own" that she is lucky to have a Mom and Dad who WANT to run her life. We gave in and allowed our beautiful 16-year-old daughter to go with a crazy, mixed-up, hippie freak. Now she is eight months pregnant and has dropped out of high school.

I guess you might say our daughter proved she had a "mind of her own," but until she was 18 we should have insisted that she toe the line and do exactly as we said.

Now, because we let her "run her own life" (as she insisted) we are suffering for her foolish mistakes.

Press aides go to cleaners

When a U. S. senator has an urgent problem, he turns it over to his press aide. These are called pressing problems.

Every solon has on his staff a man who is supposed to know something about public relations and the machinations of the mass media. It is his job to keep the senator from putting his foot in his mouth, or help him get it out when he already has.

Now for the bad news. Press agents, aides and secretaries for the senators cost the American taxpayer $2.5 million a year. The total is arrived at by taking the list of persons designated by senators as press secretaries and adding up their salaries, which are made public. That $2.5 million won't pay off the national debt, of course, but it seems like a sizeable sum to pay for a lot of flacks who know how to type and have a lot of pals at the Washington Press Club.

The average salary of a senatorial press aide is $25,902 for which packet

I would be happy to do a lot of typing. Three top P-R types draw $30,770 each. You don't earn that much on Let's Make a Deal.

Many press aides serve other functions, as well, but I doubt if any of them are about to collapse from overwork. They all have their OWN secretaries and many have assistants in charge of paper clips and typewriter ribbons. ("Secretary" comes from the Latin, secretarius, "one entrusted with secrets." Aha!)

The question before the house — or Senate — is what does John Q. Public get for his $2.5 million of hard-earned and even harder parted-with taxes? He gets a Niagara-like torrent of press releases, letters to constituents, speeches and ringing announcements of new sewer lines in his home district. He gets soothing explanations about why the senator is against the new school bill and reassuring double-talk on why, now that we are at peace, the defense

Just sign us — Lost In Logic

Dear Lost: There is no way you could have insisted that your daughter "toe the line" if she was determined to defy you and continue to see that boy.

Defiant and rebellious children will do as they please. You could have stood on your head and spit firecrackers and the results would have been the same. So stop beating yourselves.

Dear Ann Landers: Saturday is the day my husband is supposed to spend with his five-year-old son by a former wife.

Every Saturday he has a golf game, plays cards, or goes fishing. I am the unpaid babysitter and I resent it. The youngster is undisciplined and I am exhausted after chasing him for seven hours. Any suggestions? — Beat budget is the highest in history. You think being a press aide is EASY?

Dear Beat: Hire a sitter and get out of the house. Also tell your husband if he doesn't start spending some time with that boy soon they will have no relationship later. In fact, it may be too late now.

It must not be thought that the press aide is the only link between the senator and the people that sent him to Washington. Radio and television newscasters, reporters, columnists, press bureaus and wire services see all and blab all. The press secretary's four-page mimeographed letter to the voters arrives with its hot news, carefully phrased to make Big Daddy look good, about a week after it has been common knowledge throughout the land.

The press secretary or aide, like barnacles on the bottom of the Ship of State, has been around a long time and probably will be with us awhile longer. But how long would he last if HIS salary came out of that of the senator?

Do you know what President Ford's first official act was?

Right! He named a press secretary.

HURTS KNEE ON PLAY

Milwaukee's John Briggs (12) slides into Angels' shortstop Billy Smith (14) on the front end of double play in the second inning. Smith injured his knee on the play.

Murphy stops Angels

ANAHEIM (AP) — Tom Murphy used to call himself an Angel.

The Angels, meanwhile, were probably calling Murphy a lot of other things Sunday after his three-inning relief stint preserved a 4-3 victory for the Milwaukee Brewers. A starter for 3½ years with California before he was dealt away early in 1972 following a disastrous 6-17 season, Murphy has discovered a new and exciting career as a rescue artist for Del Crandall's Brewers.

His save Sunday was his 10th of the year and the 30th since Crandall asked him to become a fireman at the outset of the 1974 season.

"I'd be foolish to say I'm not enjoying it," Murphy grinned after he picked up for starter Jim Colborn and put the brakes to a four-game California winning streak.

"I called myself a five-inning pitcher when I was with the Angels," Murphy continued. "Now, as a reliever, I don't have to face the opposition batting order more than once around."

Murphy, who is refreshingly candid, felt Crandall should have brought him in to start the seventh inning.

"I seldom have the luxury of pitching with a big lead but I would have today if Del had brought me in when he should have," Murphy said.

Colborn, whose 0-4 record and 5.14 ERA at the outset of the game indicates he has been struggling with Milwaukee, blanked the Angels on two hits for six innings before he departed hastily in the seventh after a leadoff walk to Tommy Harper and Joe Lahoud's homer halved Milwaukee's lead to 4-2.

Murphy gave up a run in the eighth on a bunt single by Dave Collins, a bloop single by Jerry Remy and an infield chopper by Lahoud, who drove in all three Angel runs.

But Remy also tried to score on Lahoud's hit and was gunned down at home by Brewer first baseman George Scott, who had momentarily bobbled Pedro Garcia's hurried throw.

Colborn wound up with his first victory of the season and his sixth in a row against California, a team which has not beaten him since July of 1972.

The Angels ended their 12-game home stand with a 5-7 record and embark on a 12-game, 10-day road trip tonight. They begin in New York, where the streaking Yankees, winners of eight in a row and 10 of 11, will send Catfish Hunter, 8-5, against Bill Singer, 5-7.

Catcher Darrell Porter, like Colborn off to a struggling start, accounted for all four Milwaukee runs by slamming a two-run homer and a two-run single off loser Ed Figueroa, 4-2.

Porter, batting only .191, snapped a scoreless tie in the fifth with his single and drilled his fourth homer in the seventh.

Porter's single in the fifth followed a costly error by Angel shortstop Orlando Ramirez, filling in for Billy Smith who was shaken up and removed after a collision with John Briggs in the second.

Ramirez booted a potential double play ball and after the runners were balked to second by Figueroa, Porter delivered.

Jennings takes 2nd in finals

Ontario High's Marcus Jennings was the only valley athlete to place in Saturday's CIF state track and field finals at San Diego's Balboa Stadium.

Jennings placed second in the long jump with a leap of 23-11½ to finish behind Fontana's Paul Wilson, who had a 24-8½.

The other valley athletes to compete in the finals were Upland's Linda Hightower in the girls' 440 and Chino's Sherri Morris in the girls' high jump. They didn't place.

Eliminated in the preliminaries Friday were Ganesha's Lloyd Jones in the boys 120 high hurdles, Upland's Conelia Sonnenburg in the girls' 80 low hurdles and Claremont's Jennie Stary in the girls' long jump.

Harry Ellis High of Richmond won the state boys' title while Los Angeles Washington took top honors in the girls' competition.

Eric Hulst's record-breaking two mile run highlighted the 57th annual championships.

The Laguna Beach junior's 8:44.9 effort Saturday at Balboa Stadium was only one of several great performances before the estimated 17,000 fans.

Hulst's time is the fourth fastest ever for a prep, bettered only by Craig Virgin of Lebanon, Ill. (8:41.0 and 8:42.6) and the late Steve Prefontaine of Coos Bay, Ore. (8:41.6). The 5-10, 180 pounder's time also set a national record for a junior.

Los Angeles area athletes won several events including San Fernando's Kevin Williams winning the 100 equalling the meet record of 9.4; Hamilton's Bill Mullins took the 220 in 21.2; and Fremont's Johnny Washington was the high jump victor at 7-0.

Kathy Costello of Pleasant Hills set girls' records in both the 880 and the mile, breaking four national marks and equalling two others.

Petty edges Allison thanks to pit crew

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

RIVERSIDE — Richard Petty won Sunday's Tuborg 400 at Riverside Raceway in the pits. At the same time, Petty found out 13 was a lucky number.

Petty, "King Richard" of the Grand National drivers, made the same number of pit stops, six, as second place finisher Bobby Allison. But Allison's stops totaled 2:22.5 to Petty's 1:59.1.

That's a difference of 23.4 seconds. Petty won by a margin of 9.4 seconds.

"The big difference was the pit stops," grinned Petty as he sat in the press box sipping a soft drink and mopping his brow. "I think my crew had a little thing (bet) going with Bobby's crew that they were going to beat them."

Behind Petty were Allison, Benny Parsons and Ray Elder, the only drivers running in the same lap as the leader.

Petty's prize money, $14,885 put him within $37,727 of becoming the first $2 million winner in the history of stock car racing.

Petty survived a brush with car number 31 driven by Jim Boyd going into turn two with just five laps to go.

"I came up on a couple of slower cars," Petty related, "and one of 'em signaled me to pass. The other driver (Boyd) thought the signal was for him and he came over and got me a little. Fortunately I was able to get over and clear him myself."

Petty's car had a long mark on the right hand side to show how close he came to a serious accident.

It was Boyd's car that knocked George Follmer out of the race earlier. Follmer hit the wall in turn four and briefly caught fire.

"I was trying to pass (Boyd) and he turned into me and I went into the wall," Follmer told radio listeners.

It wasn't Follmer's day. After challenging early and running in third the first 20 laps, the Californian pitted for fuel and left side tires and was seen to be dragging an exhaust pipe as he returned to the track.

He was black flagged and came in and had his crew tear the exhaust pipe off. Two laps later he was in again for a change of all four tires. He had a left front tire rubbing and his door was dented when he fell off the jack.

Allison, the pole-sitter, led the first 28 laps. Jimmy Insolo, of Mission Hills, was in front laps 29-45. Allison took over again on lap 46 and led through lap 80.

Petty, who started in second position, took it easy in the early going. His bright blue and red STP Dodge was sixth after 10 laps, fifth after 20 laps, third after 30 laps and stayed there through the 51st lap and then

UTEP spikers overcame woes

PROVO, Utah (AP) — University of Texas-El Paso is the 1975 National Collegiate Athletic Association outdoor team track champion because, says Coach Ted Banks, his athletes know how to overcome adversity.

The UTEP Miners won the 54th NCAA outdoor meet Saturday by scoring in the mile, steeplechase and triple jump, and when Southern California folded in three of four events the Trojans could have won.

UTEP finished with 55 points to 42 for UCLA and 37 for pre-meet favorite Southern Cal. Defending champion Tennessee had 24 to tie for sixth with Oregon.

The 41-year-old Banks, a UCLA graduate, said, when it became apparent late in the meet that USC and UCLA could not catch the Miners, he was pleased.

"We had several setbacks, but the kids showed lots of character and performed very well," he said.

The major setback he referred to came Friday night when freshman high jumper Greg Joy, considered a cinch for points and perhaps a first place, failed to qualify for the finals when he tripped on his last attempt at 6-11.

"But we were able to come back," Banks said.

And come back the Miners did. Hans Hoglund and Hans Almstrom, both Swedes, took the first two places in the shot put on Friday. Then, the next day, UTEP's corps of Kenyan distance runners took over.

James Munyala, a slight freshman, won the steeplechase in 8:46.93, and miler Wilson Waigwa, a sophomore, took third in his event. With Larry Jessee taking fifth in the pole vault and Arnold Grimes second in the triple jump, that was all UTEP needed to clinch its first NCAA outdoor title.

Texas-El Paso is the third school to win the indoor and outdoor track titles in one year.

USC, on the other hand, went its seventh consecutive year without winning, and that for a school which won six titles between 1958 and 1968 and once took seven championships in a row.

Symbolic of USC's frustration was sprinter James Gilkes from Guyana. Gilkes was withdrawn from the 100-yard dash to concentrate on defending his 220 crown, but then lost the 220 to Tennessee's Reggie Jones in 20.6 seconds. Gilkes also ran anchor on the Trojan 440-relay team which was supposed to have the speed to surpass the world record of 38.6, set by USC here in 1967.

But the Trojan relay of Randy Williams, Mike Simmons, Ken Randle and Gilkes managed only a 39.09 on Saturday, .08 seconds slower than in the semifinals a day earlier. The championship race was run shortly after a cold rain delayed the meet an hour and left the track soaked.

"My feet were frozen and my socks were all wet," said Gilkes after the race. "I went as fast as I could under the conditions."

Dodgers glad to return home

LOS ANGELES — Happy to be back home, the Los Angeles Dodgers are eager to begin a 10-game homestand at Dodger Stadium tonight against the Montreal Expos.

The Dodgers returned home Sunday night in second place in the National League West after losing at Philadelphia, 3-2. L.A. completed its two-week trip through the East with a 5-7 record. In the 12 games, the Dodgers scored only 39 runs.

Andy Messersmith (8-2) will go to the mound tonight against Montreal lefthander Woody Fryman (5-2) in the first of a brief two-game set against the Expos.

The Mets, Phillies and Astros follow Montreal into town.

All of a sudden, the Dodgers' big problem is playing the East. With a 14-14 record against the Eastern clubs, the Dodgers have fallen 1½ games behind the red-hot Cincinnati Reds.

The big talk concerning the Dodgers still centers around a possible trade with the rumors still flying about a deal with St. Louis for outfielder Reggie Smith, who is available now with the Cardinals picking up Willie Davis.

But most of the Dodgers feel the big tonic is coming home.

"All we need is some home cooking," Willie Crawford said.

"We've got to bounce back on this homestand because we don't want to get too far behind Cincinnati," Jim Wynn added.

While the Dodgers are delighted to come home, the Phillies can't be too happy to go on the road for an 11-game trip.

The Phils won eight of 12 on their homestand but are only 6-16 on the road this season.

But second baseman Dave Cash isn't concerned about playing on the road.

"If we stay within our capabilities we're going to win," predicted Cash, whose two run homer in the fifth inning and seventh inning sacrifice fly accounted for three runs in the win over the Dodgers.

"We didn't play bad baseball on the last trip, although we didn't win," Cash insisted. "We just weren't hitting. We had pitching and defense, but if you don't put some runs across the plate you don't win. We left a ton of runs on base."

The Phillies haven't been leaving many men on base recently. The club has hit 15 in the last seven games. Mike Schmidt with five, Greg Luzinski three and Dick Allen two were the main contributors to the power attack.

Cash who Sunday hit the home run in Veterans Stadium, only his 10th in his seven-year major league career, blamed early success for the last road trip's failure. He felt the club was overconfident and complacent due to a previous seven-game winning streak.

Cincy's Joe Morgan injures his shoulder

CINCINNATI (AP) — Joe Morgan, the Cincinnati Reds' leading hitter, suffered a bruised shoulder Sunday that could sideline him for a couple days, the team trainer said.

Morgan was struck in the back by a pitch during a pickoff play in Cincinnati's doubleheader sweep of the Chicago Cubs.

The Reds go after their 17th vic-

"The important thing for a team is not to get too excited when it wins and not too down when it loses," he said. "That's the way a good ball club should react."

Right-hander Jim Lonborg earned his fifth win against three losses, giving up six hits, striking out five and walking only two. Only one of the two Dodgers' runs was earned.

"They (the Dodgers) swing their bats, and go up there hacking," Lonborg said. "They're conducive to my kind of pitching, hitting the corners."

Lonborg, however, declined to discuss his first hit of the season in 27 at bats, single in the fifth—before Cash's homer—which drove home Jerry Martin's double, the first run of the game.

"I have no comment on my hitting, talk to the hitters about hitting," said Lonborg, who survived a ninth inning Dodgers' uprising by getting tough Ron Cey to hammer into a double play.

The Dodgers picked up two runs in the seventh with the help of an error by third baseman Mike Schmidt. Jim Wynn walked, Steve Garvey singled, the runners advanced on a wild throw and Crawford singled two home.

Sun signs Bob Ferrell

Bobby Ferrell, former Ganesha and UCLA running back, was one of seven rookies signed by the Southern California Sun Football team over the weekend.

Ferrell gained 1,651 yards and scored 28 touchdowns along with nine conversions for 184 points to lead CIF 3-A players in scoring in his senior year at Ganesha.

Six different times he scored three or more touchdowns in one game. Four times he gained 234 yards or more in one game.

His greatest game was against Montclair when he carried the ball 28 times in the first half, gained 242 yards and scored five touchdowns and ran for a two point conversion for a total of 32 points.

Locklear joins Padres

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The National League San Diego Padres announced Sunday that outfielder Gene Locklear from the Hawaii Pacific Coast League team will replace infielder Steve Huntz.

Huntz was sent to the Hawaiian PCL team in the switch, keeping the Padres' roster at 25 players.

Just misses no-hitter

Holtzman has no regrets

By Associated Press
Oakland's Ken Holtzman was thinking about a no-hitter. He almost got one.

Baltimore's Jim Palmer wasn't thinking about a no-hitter...and he almost got one, too.

For Palmer, the thought of what might have been didn't really enter his mind until it was too late, well after Hal McRae's fourth-inning single, Kansas City's lone hit in Sunday's 1-0 loss to the Orioles.

But for Holtzman, the thought lingered on, as long as the dream of a no-hitter can go before it becomes a reality.

It lasted 8 2/3 innings. Actually it lasted more than that. It lasted until Detroit's Tom Veryzer was down to his last strike. Then, bang, it was all over with a booming double to center field that caught the wind and sailed about a foot beyond the glove of lunging Billy North.

So, with the dream of a third career no-hitter gone, Holtzman did what any good pitcher would do. He returned to the business of trying to win. And he did, striking out Ron LeFlore to end the game, and the A's trudged off the field with a 4-0 victory over the Tigers.

In the rest of the American League, Cleveland defeated Texas 3-2 before the Rangers won the 17-inning second game 7-6, Minnesota beat Boston 7-5, New York downed Chicago 5-1 and Milwaukee edged California 4-3.

"I'm just thankful to get the win," said Holtzman, 5-6. "They've been hard to come by this year. I've already pitched two no-hitters and I never counted on throwing one. You've got to be terrifically lucky to get a no-hitter."

North took it a lot harder. "I wanted that no-hitter. I blame myself," he moaned. But if there was any forgiving to be done, Holtzman was ready to do it.

"I can't blame Billy," he said. "I could see the ball was carrying. At first I thought he might get to it, then I saw he wouldn't and just worried about getting the last out of the game."

"When I hit the ball, I was sure it was an out," said Veryzer. Then, almost apologetically, he added: "I guess the no-hitter would have meant a lot more to me than the hit does to me."

Claudell Washington gave Holtzman all the hits he needed with his fifth and sixth homers of the season, a solo shot in the fifth inning and a three-run clout in the seventh.

Orioles 1, Royals 0

"If I had gone late into the game with a no-hitter going, I might have thought about it," Palmer said. "But even then, I think everything you do has to be dictated in the way you want to try and win the game."

So Palmer simply outdueled the Royals' Steve Busby, who allowed just four hits. "Both pitchers had outstanding stuff," Baltimore's Brooks Robinson said. "For a while, I thought we might have to go 20 innings." They didn't, only because Robinson followed Lee May's seventh-inning double with a single down the right field line.

Indians 3-6, Rangers 2-7

"If I say I'm not tired I'm a liar...I don't think I'd feel this tired if I played," quipped Texas Manager Billy Martin after singles by Jeff Burroughs, Mike Hargrove and Len Randle gave the Rangers their 4 1/4-hour, 17-inning nightcap victory over Cleveland in the longest game in the majors this season.

In the first game, the Indians bunched all their runs in the fourth inning, two coming on John Ellis' two-run double.

Twins 7, Red Sox 5

Larry Hise doubled to start Minnesota's six-run ninth inning that beat Boston and capped it with an RBI single.

Hise's double was protested by Boston Manager Darrell Johnson, who was ejected after heatedly contending that the high drive to left field had been caught at the wall by Bernie Carbo. Umpire Jerry Neudecker disagreed, insisting it bounced off Carbo's glove and hit the wall before he grabbed it again.

"The ball couldn't have hit that tin out there," Johnson fumed, "because everyone in the park would have heard it!"

Yanks 4, White Sox 1

The Yanks, notching their eighth straight victory, also got the benefit of a disputed drive to left. Elliott Maddox hit the ball in the third inning. A fan reached down and touched the ball. But although it was a ground-rule double, Walt Williams was allowed to score from first. The ump's ruled that since he'd been running on the play, he would have made it home in any case.

Chris Chambliss then made the matter academic by driving in two runs with a ninth-inning single to cap the triumph over the White Sox.

Ray Floyd finally wins

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Coming into the ninth green in the Kemper Open, Ray Floyd stood 100 feet and six years from victory on the pro golf tour.

It had been that long since his last victory, the 1969 PGA, and he had 100 feet of slick, rolling green to negotiate with his third shot on the 535-yard par five.

Floyd chipped an eight iron onto the green. It rolled over a low-lying stretch of grass, curved right and hopped into the hole for an eagle. The $50,000 Kemper prize was, from that moment, his to hold.

The eagle gave Floyd a two-stroke lead over South African Gary Player and enabled him to play cautiously down the stretch, using irons off the tees on the last four holes.

"From there it was just a process of knocking holes out of the way. I just struggled around," he said later.

Floyd, 32, said he didn't know the proper adjectives describe his feeling after winning. "I've worked hard for a couple of years, applying myself to my game. It seemed like I was destined."

Floyd's final round 69 gave him a total of 278, three shots ahead of Player and John Mahaffey.

The ninth was also a good hole for Player, who has not yet won on the tour this year. He hit a delicate wedge over a sand trap to within four feet and holed the putt for a birdie.

But on the back nine, Player was frustrated by several putts that rimmed the cup and refused to fall. He bogeyed the 11th and 18th to finish with a 73.

That tied him with young Mahaffey, who started his round with a flock of birds, then cooled off on the back side and finished with a 70.

Player didn't speak to reporters after his round, but Mahaffey offered an unusual excuse for the putts he failed to hole. "It's the white paint on the cups of the televised holes," he said. "I think it makes the hold hard and the putts go in and come out." On televised holes, cups are painted to make them easier to see.

A shot behind Mahaffey was Jerry Heard, with a 72 for a 282. Behind Heard came the trio of Jim Masserio, Bob Murphy and Britain's Peter Oosterhuis at 283.

Second-year pro Masserio nearly doubled his previous earnings for the year with his $9,083 share of the purse. He came within two strokes of Floyd on the back nine before faltering slightly on the final holes.

Veselic stars in 7-1 victory

Bob Veselic pitched and batted the Walnut Thorobred team to a 7-1 victory at Azusa Sunday night.

Veselic (2-0) struck out 13, walked nobody and had a two-run single in the five run Walnut seventh inning.

Walnut took a 1-0 lead on three hits including a leadoff double by a 17-year old Jim Ziegler in the second inning. But Azusa came right back to tie the game in the last half of the second.

It remained a 1-1 tie until the seventh. Jim Arkison and Stuart Naas dished up four walks while the Azusa defense was guilty of two errors. The only hits in the five-run inning were an RBI single by Mario Rojas and Veselic's hit. Dean Sickels got two hits to extend his hitting streak to six games and raise his average to .471.

Walnut, 2-2-1 in league play and 3-2-1 overall, travels to Rowland Heights High Tuesday to play Rowland Heights at 5:30 p.m.

GIANTS 3-4, Pirates 1-2

Glenn Adams' ninth-inning home run tied the game, then pinch-hitter Marc Hill slashed a two-run single, giving San Francisco a sweep of the doubleheader.

In the opener, Chris Speier drove in two runs to ruin the major league pitching debut of Pittsburgh's John Candelaria.

Pittsburgh's Richie Hebner homered in each of the losing causes, giving him four in the last five contests.

The first game had been a battle of the giants. Candelaria, 6-foot-7, 205 pounds, battled San Francisco's Ed Halicki, 6-7, 220.

Halicki won with a five-hitter while Giants' out-

Pomona American A split two games as did Diamond Bar No. 2 and Ted Greene. Pomona Southwest won the first game, 7-4. Pomona American B took the second, 6-5. Ted Greene edged Diamond Bar number 2, 5-4 in the opener. Diamond Bar won the nightcap, 5-1.

Jim Thomaston won both ends of the doubleheader for Pomona American A. Thomaston (4-0) pitched the last five innings in the first game and first four of the second.

P.A. built up a 7-1 lead in the first game, but Pomona National caught up and then went ahead, 9-7. P.A. took a 10-9 lead and built that up to 13-9 before P.N. came back to make it 13-10 and finally 13-12.

Pomona National got in front 1-0 in the first game, but Pomona American came back to take a 2-1 lead and then 4-1 before P.N. rallied again only to fall short, 4-3.

Diamond Bar number one won its game behind Curt Stikey. Stikey singled in two of DB's runs in the first inning. In the second game, Diamond Bar was guilty of seven errors. Glendora scored eight runs in the first in-

Post 330 explodes for win

By TIM CLARK
PB Correspondent

It was the Bruce Hines show plus some Sunday afternoon at Bonita High. Hines and his teammates came from behind as La Verne Post 330 routed West Covina Post 790, 11-4.

Hines enjoyed one of those rare, days that an athlete experiences once a year or every two or three years. Bruce walked, stole second, beat out a bunt single, stole second, doubled twice, and tripled. The La Verne speedster also scored all of the five times that he was on base, and drove in two himself.

Hines' two steals now give him a total of nine thefts in as many attempts this year. Bruce also raised his batting average from a respectable .333 to a lofty .466.

La Verne fell behind quickly 3-1, when Bill Bumstead had some difficulty getting untracked on the mound in the early going. Trailing 4-3 going into its half of the seventh, La Verne exploded.

With one away, Post 790 starter Tim Sweat walked Paul Richards. Richards stole second, and then coasted home on Hines' RBI double. Jerry Osborne reached base on an error, and then Sweat walked Dave Drury, to load the bases. Following a pop-up by Ron Pickenpaugh, Wally Pitts, who had La Verne's only hit in Saturday's game, blasted what appeared to be a triple down the right field line to clear the bases. But Drury forgot to touch second, and the umpire's agreed with an appeal by West Covina. So Pitts got only a single. Still, the first two runs counted, and Post 330 had the lead, 6-4.

La Verne blew it open in the bottom of the eighth, scoring five more runs on four hits and two errors. The big blows of the frame included an RBI triple by Hines, a run scored single by Osborne, and an RBI double by Pickenpaugh. Bumstead (1-1) was relieved by Curt Burkhardt, who pitched the ninth. Burkhardt, the ironman of the Post 330 squad, has already recorded two saves this year, besides also picking up a win and boosting an ERA of 1.12.

Foyt wins disputed race

MILWAUKEE (AP) — It wasn't the easiest $16,739 A.J. Foyt ever has earned, but he'll take it.

However, the racing veteran from Texas wouldn't be permitted the winner's share of the Rex Mays 150-mile race if Dan Gurney, Bobby Unser, Johnny Rutherford and Gordon Johncock had their way.

Foyt survived a disputed black flag, a challenge by Indianapolis 500 winner Unser and considerable post-race confusion Sunday to post his 51st speedway car victory in the Mays 150-miler before 34,692.

Foyt overtook Unser for on lap 129 of the mile oval and averaged 114.042 miles per hour to win his third Mays race and first since 1964. Unser was second, defending champion Rutherford third, Wallyallenbach fourth and Mike Mosley fifth.

Gurney, Unser's team captain, thought Foyt had been penalized a full lap when he was black-flagged and that he therefore was running a lap behind the pack when he passed Unser on lap 129.

"We thought Foyt was unlapping himself," Gurney said. "We would have raced differently if we thought Foyt was on the same lap."

There was talk of an official protest, but none was issued.

The confusion began when the yellow caution flag went out on lap 54 after Mel Cornett spun on the north turn and was hit broadside by John Martin. Neither was injured, although their cars were damaged.

Foyt was black-flagged on lap 68 because, in the judgment of U.S. Auto Club officials, he passed Roger McCluskey just before the green flag went back out for the 65th lap. Drivers may not pass when the caution flag is in effect.

Foyt was sidetracked for five seconds, dropping him from second place to fourth at the time.

Rutherford, who with Gurney, Unser and Johncock huddled with USAC officials for more than half an hour after the race, said Foyt should have been made to wait a full lap before resuming racing. "That's a lap penalty no matter how you look at it," Rutherford said.

However, a USAC spokesman said the chief steward, Art Meyers, determines the type of penalty, and that Meyers decided the infraction was not sufficiently severe to cost Foyt a full lap.

Foyt didn't think he should have been penalized at all.

"I thought it was a lousy call," he said. "If I had passed a guy in second place it's a different story, but I didn't improve my position so I didn't think I did anything wrong. I was losing ground because McCluskey wouldn't get going, so I took off but I just got back to second."

"I knew the first time I did something wrong they (USAC officials) would call me," he said. "They don't do it to anyone else. They've cost me a couple of races in the past. That's what really makes me hot."

SPORTS FANS

I Bet You Didn't Know

Brought To You By Ken Reichers

Most weekend golfers have trouble on various holes and get bad scores — but did you ever wonder what was the worst score ever made by a professional on one hole in a tournament? . . . The record is held by Tommy Armour . . . In the 1927 Shawnee Open, he took a 21 on one hole . . . Armour had better luck that same year, however, because he won the National Open that season . . . It proves how inconsistent golfers can be — both the weekend golfers, and the pros.

Here's quite an oddity You'd think the man who held the record for scoring the most runs in one game would have been an infielder, outfielder or catcher, but Pitcher Guy Hecker set the all-time record when he scored 7 times in one game in 1886 and nobody has ever topped that.

Here's an amazing fact . . . Did you ever realize that big league baseball and football teams can play 50 years and not draw as many people as can see them in JUST ONE DAY on television! . . . Let's say a team's home attendance averages 1-million people a year . . . Thus, they could play 50 years and draw a total of 50-million fans . . . But ONE game on TV can draw more than 50-million viewers in one afternoon, so a team can play to more people on TV in one game than they can draw in their own stadiums for over 50 years!

I'll bet you didn't know . . . Midas installs mufflers and shock absorbers on most foreign cars with the same expertise they have on American cars for over 16 years.
